Leaders Urge Quick Vote on Knox, Stimson

Opponents Accuse
New Deal of Move
For War Cabinet

Washington (AP)—Amid charges that the administration was setting up a war cabinet, the senate leadership strove today to obtain quick approval of President Roosevelt's Republican appointees to defense cabinet posts.

Even opponents conceded that the two nominees—Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war, and Frank Knox to be secretary of the navy—would be confirmed, but debate was lasting longer than expected.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, expressed hope both appointments would be out of the way by nightfall so that the senate could pass the $4,000,000,000 navy expansion bill before congress recesses Thursday night for the Democratic national convention.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), opposing confirmation of Stimson, asserted in the senate today that Mr. Roosevelt had "left himself clear" to advocate a declaration of war.

Taft said Stimson "advocates a policy which amounts to war and would certainly lead to war," and declared that his appointment was of a pattern with other steps he said the administration was taking toward war.

See War Menace

In yesterday's debate, critics contended that the nominations were a step on the road to war. On the other hand, Chairman Sheppard (D-Texas) of the military committee hailed them as a sign of national unity at a time of great emergency.

Leaders had hoped that at least one of the nominees would be confirmed yesterday, but Senator Reynolds (D-N.C.) devoted nearly two hours to urging suspension of all immigration for ten years.

Meanwhile, Harry H. Woodring, who resigned recently as secretary of war, announced that he would discuss national affairs tonight in a speech welcoming him back to Topeka, Kans. It will be broadcast over NBC Blue network at 7:30 p. m. (C. S. T.)

Woodring said at Topeka that he had received a steady stream of letters since he left Washington. There have been reports that he disagreed with the administration's policy of selling certain surplus military equipment to the allies.

Martin Will Direct Willkie's Campaign

Heads National Committee; Stassen
And Hamilton Get Major Assignments

Washington (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, took off today in a chartered plane for a vacation in Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Willkie, his secretary F. A. Rahter, and a party of 17 reporters and photographers accompanied the candidate. Short stops will be made at Chicago and Omaha.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, house minority leader, today was named chairman of the Republican national committee and director of the Willkie presidential campaign.

John D. M. Hamilton, present committee chairman, was selected as executive director. He will work under Martin.

Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, announced the appointments to a press conference after he had met with a subcommittee which the national committee authorized to make the selections.

Willkie also announced that Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who was keynote speaker at Willkie's floor manager at the Republican convention, would head a large campaign advisory committee.

Other appointments included formal selection of Russell Davenport of New York, former managing editor of Fortune magazine, to serve as Willkie's personal representative, working with Martin, and the assignment of Owen Root, Jr., young New York lawyer, to organization work among independent Willkie clubs.

Confers With McNary
Both Davenport and Root were associated with Willkie in those capacities during his campaign for the Republican nomination.

The presidential nominee met his running mate, Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, for the first time late yesterday, and afterward reported that they were in "full accord" on campaign plans.

McNary said he was "impressed with Willkie's sincerity," and expressed belief he would make "a great campaigner and a splendid president."

The two men attended a dinner last night for Republican members.

Japanese Paper In Attack on U. S.

Shanghai (AP)—A violent tirade against United States marines was spread today across the front page of the newspaper Taiyiku Shimo, generally regarded as a mouthpiece of the Japanese army in China, as the aftermath of an International Settlement incident.

Japanese authorities demanded an apology for "mistreatment" of Japanese plainclothes gendarmes arrested by marines in the settlement July 7.

"The Taiyiku Shimo declared the marines were 'gentlemen with human faces, but with the skins of animals.'"

Indignant patriots, it added, had posted handbills with such slogans as "Down with America" and "Remove the American hindrance to development of East Asia."

Meanwhile Major General Saburo Mura, commander of Japanese gendarmes here, demanding an apology for the July 7 affair, warned that "a speedy settlement of the incident is necessary or the matter is likely to take a grave turn."

Army to Have Total
Of 1,700 Tanks for
New Armored Corps

Washington (AP)—A projected purchase of 629 light tanks, which would give the army a total of nearly 1,700 light and medium tanks for its new armored corps and other mechanized units, was disclosed today at the war department.

Bids were opened yesterday at Rock Island, Ill., but the proposals have not yet been received here and the contracts will not be awarded until late this week, the department said.

Among the 629 tanks will be the first purchased with funds from the multi-billion-dollar defense program for the 1941 fiscal year.

The army has on hand today 492 light and medium tanks and combat cars constructed within the last four years. Light tanks and combat cars are basically the same, weighing some 10 tons each.

The army also has placed orders for 532 light tanks to be purchased with 1940 funds. In addition, there are some medium and heavy tank purchases contemplated.

Dictator Role for Petain; France at End of Republic

Premier to Receive Full Power
To Draw Up New Constitution

Vichy, France (AP)—The French senate adopted today the government's resolution for revision of the French constitution, by a vote of 225 to 1. It previously had been adopted by the chamber of deputies, 395 to 3.

The bill grants the government of Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain full powers to write a new constitution.

Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber, read the brief text of the bill, which had been approved last night by the cabinet with President Albert Lebrun presiding, and by the chamber's legislative committee this morning.

The bill now will go to the national assembly, composed of both houses sitting together, for purely formal approval.

The national assembly session is to be held tomorrow in the Vichy casino.

Extended Powers

This probably means the end of the democratic third French republic, which rose from the ashes of the empire of Napoleon III and fell under the Nazi conquest.

Petain's government is expected to emerge with greater power than any free government of republican France ever held—authority to frame its own laws and constitution and then create its own assembly to ratify them.

The measure, however, declared that the new constitution of German-mastered France "must guarantee the rights of labor, family, and country."

The senate judicial committee was announced officially to have approved unanimously a draft of the bill to be submitted to the national assembly for a new constitution.

Both steps by the chamber—authorization to convene the assembly and the resolution to entrust Petain's cabinet with drafting the constitution—were completed within an hour.

Single Article

The bill contains only one article—giving Petain's government power to draw up the new charter by decree.

Before the vote, Herriot recalled France's sufferings in the war and expressed hope for a better future.

Pierre Laval, former premier and foreign minister, announced that "the existing parliament would continue functioning until the new constitution has set up a successor."

(A dispatch to the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois said that deputies going to Vichy from "liberated zones"—apparently a reference under conscription to the zones still occupied by the Germans—were surrounded by eager crowds asking what life was like in those parts of the country.)

(In general, the dispatch said, "it seems that there are no serious incidents to report, but the enemy yoke is no less unrelenting nor less heavy.")

Nazis Report Heavy Toll in British Ships

Open Intensive Drive
To Destroy Merchant
Vessels of England

Berlin (AP)—Heavy blows to British shipping, including the sinking of the destroyer Whirlwind and several armed merchant ships, were credited to German submarines today by the Nazi high command.

The air force, it said, raided port facilities, airports, armament factories and ships in England.

Listed as hit were: shipyards at Devonport, oil tanks at Ipswich and elsewhere, explosive plants at Harwich, chemical plants at Billingham, a cruiser, a destroyer and five merchantmen in the North sea.

A new, intensive campaign to destroy British merchant shipping has been launched by German naval and air forces and may be expected to continue indefinitely, informed Nazi sources indicated today.

New Record Set

Opening of the drive was acclaimed by the authoritative commentary Dienst aus Deutschland, which said 330,000 registered tons of merchant shipping flying the British flag or bound for Britain were destroyed in the last eight days, exceeding all previous figures for any entire month since outbreak of the war.

Whether the drive to cut the lifelines of the British empire is a prelude to a direct attack upon England itself remained a matter of conjecture.

The German press centered on reports from the United States that President Roosevelt had suggested

Visits Canada but Is Denied Right to Come Back Into U. S.

Wausau (AP)—Bavarian-born Albert Stemler, of Schofield, 65, who went to Canada on a fishing trip June 23, has been denied re-admittance to the United States since the new immigration law which became effective four days after he crossed the border.

Stemler, who has been a janitor in a Schofield paper mill for 18 years, came to the United States in 1907, but did not seek citizenship until a year ago, when he received his first papers.

He has petitioned the Swiss consul at Winnipeg for a special passport, which, if granted, will allow him to return to the United States. The Swiss consulate is handling German affairs in Canada.

Mexico Counts Votes;
New Outbreaks Feared

Mexico City (AP)—Repetition of sanguinary disturbances in which at least 44 persons were killed and 288 wounded during Sunday's presidential elections was expected today by political circles to accompany the official vote tabulation Thursday.

In an effort to forestall trouble the government began mobilizing the nation's military and police forces.

Reich and Italy in Agreement on Parts
To Be Played in War

Rome (AP)—An Italian-German agreement for a three-fold attack on Britain was reported today by Virginia Gayda, usually authoritative fascist editor.

The axis partners, Gayda said, are determined:

1. To blockade the British Isles.
2. To break Britain's empire contacts.
3. To defeat her "at home, in imperial territories" and at sea.

Each axis power has definitely assigned tasks for these goals, Gayda, editor of Il Giornale d'Italia said.

Italy's job, he declared, is to strike at the British at four places on land and harass British shipping in the Atlantic, Mediterranean, Red sea and Indian ocean and, above all, immobilize a large part of Britain's seapower in the Mediterranean.

"On land, Gayda said, Italy is assigned to strike at Egypt from Cyrenaica, in Libya, at the British Egyptian Sudan from East Africa, at Kenya and at British Somaliland. Italian action against Sollum, capture of Kassala, British fort in Moxate, and bombardment of Aden and Perim were indications of Italian initiative along these lines, Gayda said.

New Dreadnaught Disabled; Ships to be Demilitarized For Duration of Conflict

London (AP)—The battleship Richelieu, one of France's newest and mightiest dreadnaughts, has been blasted by British depth charges at Dakar, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, informed the house of commons today.

The 35,000-ton Richelieu is down by the stern and listing to port, Alexander announced.

Attack by depth charges yesterday was made after the French had failed to reply to British conditions, Alexander said.

He disclosed that the British navy had engaged in two further operations since its attack July 3 on French units at Oran to insure that France's fleet be kept from German and Italian hands.

The Richelieu was struck first by depth bombs from a motorboat under her stern to wreck her propeller and steering gear, but the coup de grace was delivered by aerial torpedoes dropped by British planes, Alexander disclosed.

The blow disposed of the seventh French battleship, the admiralty first lord said, leaving only the Jean Bart, a sistership of the Richelieu, still so far from completion that she cannot be ready for action for months.

Fate of Warships

France had eight capital ships when the armistice was signed, he declared, accounting for them thus: three in British control, one sunk, one badly damaged and immobilized, one driven ashore at Oran and incapacitated for months if not permanently, one which escaped to the French naval base at Toulon after being hit by a torpedo, and the Jean Bart.

"This is the greatest achievement of its kind in the history of naval operations—a remarkable tribute to

Ask Inquiry in Willkie Drive

'Several Requests'
Made to Committee,
Sen. Gillette Says

Washington (AP)—Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) announced today that "several requests" had been received by the senate campaign expenditures committee for an investigation of "the alleged high pressure telegram campaign in behalf of Wendell L. Willkie."

The chairman of the committee directed to police this year's presidential and senatorial elections said he would "lay the complaints before the committee in a few days for such decision as they direct."

The committee has been and will continue to be very careful to prevent the use of its machinery for either smearing candidates or white washing candidates," the chairman said. "We are glad to make investigations within the purview of our authority on matters which are of public interest to the voter or might indicate the need of remedial legislation."

Report Windsor Will Be Bahamas Governor

New York (AP)—A British broadcast intercepted here today by NBC said the duke of Windsor had been named governor general and commander-in-chief of the Bahamas islands.

Windsor and the duchess, the former Wallis Warfield Simpson, arrived July 3 in Lisbon, Portugal, from Spain for a visit at the home of a Portuguese banker. It was announced that they had been invited to spend their stay at the British embassy there.

Tornado Destroys Business Section

Portsmouth, Iowa (AP)—Tornado winds virtually destroyed the business district here and brought injury to an undetermined number of persons last night.

First estimates fixed the number of injured at 25. Early reports said the property damage in the village and to farm lands would run into the thousands.

(Portsmouth, with a business district of about six square blocks, is near the west border of Shelby county about 10 miles west of Harlan, the county seat. In 1930 it had a population of 328.)

The storm, struck with lightning velocity about 11:30 p. m., followed with a torrent of rain and much hail.

Many of the villagers were forewarned sufficiently to take to their cellars; the injured were those who did not.

Boat Overturns, Two Fishermen, Boy Drown

St. Ignace, Mich. (AP)—Two fishermen and a boy companion drowned late yesterday when their small boat overturned in Brevort lake, Mackinac county.

The three, all residents of St. Ignace, were Ray Winters, employee of the state highway department, Leonard Valentine, a truck driver, both about 25, and Glen Eastlick.

Their bodies were recovered last night by a group headed by Sheriff Carl Woth.

Deny Delay in Visas For English Children

Washington (AP)—Denying that this government was being slow in issuing visas for English refugee children, a presidential secretary said today that the reason they were not coming here in large numbers was attributable largely to the fact that most British ships were crowded with enemy aliens bound for Canada.

Stephen Early, President Roosevelt's press secretary, made this statement to reporters when questioned about published criticism of the state department's handling of visas.

To date, Early said, the number of refugee children for which passage has been provided by the British is nowhere near the 6,500 which United States immigration laws permit to come in from England monthly.

Until the number reaches this quota, he added, congress will not be asked to raise the limitation.

Early said that Breckinridge Long, assistant secretary of state, emphatically denied that the state department was being slow in issuing visas.

"Mr. Long says," the secretary continued, "that as fast as the New York committee in charge of placing the children in homes advises, the department immediately gives the embassy in London clearance on that many visas."

"American ships are not calling at British ports and under the neutrality law they can not. The responsibility for bringing the children over is entirely that of the British government. At the present time the British are sending such ships as they have coming in this direction with enemy aliens to Canada and there isn't too much room."

Convict Takes Life, Guard Is Wounded in Futile Escape Plot

Fort Madison, Iowa (AP)—A futile escape attempt at the Iowa state penitentiary last night resulted in the suicide of a convict and the critical wounding of a prison guard.

Prison authorities said William Cunningham, Sioux City, Ia., shot himself to death after the plot collapsed.

Robert Hart, guard who was patrolling a wall of the prison, was shot in the neck.

Warden Glenn C. Haynes said three men who were seen outside the prison shortly before the attempted break were believed to have aided the convicts in their plot.

The warden said he believed the men outside were the three who escaped from the Prison June 22. They were listed as Ivan Sullivan, Lowell Haenke and Forrest Estes.

Three convicts tried to escape around a new wall being completed at the prison, but were blocked by an electrified fence outside the new section.

Badger Hunters Vote for Open Season on Deer

Conservation Congress Gives Commission Its Decisions on Seasons

Madison—(P)—Eight days of deer hunting with guns and 30 days with bow and arrow have been recommended to the conservation commission for this fall by the Wisconsin Conservation congress.

The area prescribed for hunting with guns included the 30 counties in which about 25,000 deer were killed during a seven day season last year. The bow and arrow territory, which included all or parts of 14 counties in 1939, was extended to the whole of 18 counties and parts of two others.

The congress recommended that the gun season open Nov. 23, and the bow and arrow season open Oct. 18.

The one buck and fork-horn laws in force last year were endorsed overwhelmingly.

A season on black bear, concurrent with the gun hunt for deer, in 21 counties designated as open last year also was proposed.

Wait Confirmation
Although these proposals are subject to confirmation by the conservation commission, it has been customary to adopt suggestions made by the congress, which consists of delegates from each of the 71 counties.

With Juneau, Vilas, Marquette and Lincoln county delegates casting the only dissenting votes, the congress speedily decided last night the Wisconsin deer herd was sufficiently large to warrant a fifth successive annual hunting season. Ashland, Wood, Clark and Jackson county delegates, who had come instructed to vote for a closed season, throttled much expected opposition by announcing they knew they were outnumbered and in the interest of harmony would immediately approve an open season.

Dr. H. O. Schneiders, of Wausau, general chairman of the congress, said that charges that conservation wardens had been instructed to agitate for an open season and that the commission had "all fixed" were "malicious and without foundation."

At a luncheon sponsored by the Dane County Sportsmen's league, H. W. Mackenzie, conservation director, asserted it was immaterial to the department whether seasons were declared open or closed.

"It is up to you men to decide," he said. "For the department an open season means only more work."

The congress for the first time recommended an open season on black and silver foxes extending from Dec. 1 to Feb. 1. The red fox season was set from Nov. 2 to March 1. Grey fox were left unprotected.

Black raccoon and porcupines were left on the protected list, while badgers were left unprotected.

Open season on muskrats and mink from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15 in northern counties and from Dec. 1 to Jan. 1 in southern counties were proposed. Several counties asked an open season on otter from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15. It was left to commission discretion whether skunk should be unprotected or be trapped and hunted legally only between Sept. 1 and Jan. 15.

An executive council to represent the congress until next year's meeting was elected.

Murray Would Like to See 'Honest, Sincere' Plank on War Issue

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—Congressman Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, speaking on the floor of the house Monday demanded, "Why should any political party hesitate to adopt a plank in its platform that is straight-forward, honest and sincere in regard to war?" This statement was generally regarded both as a criticism of the Republican party platform and a warning to those fashioning the Democratic platform.

In an analysis of "why congress is in session," Murray pointed out that the fundamental reason is that "the great majority of the people of this country want to be kept out of war. By having congress in session and with the power to control the declaration of war, the large majority of the people feel that congress will heed this mandate of the people and really keep this country in peace. This is a serious obligation," he said, "to those of us that are old-fashioned enough to believe that 'the will of the people is the law of the land' and do not yet subscribe to the superman philosophy of the New Deal."

War Situation Today

Britain Now Is Ready to Chase Down Italian Navy

Surrender of the entire French fleet at Alexandria to Britain was reported today as Rome dispatches disclosed a purported German-Italian agreement for a three-fold attack on the British empire.

The decision of French naval authorities to turn over the fleet leaves the British free to seek out the Italian navy in the Mediterranean for the "future engagement" promised by Prime minister Winston Churchill last week.

The first lord of the British admiralty A. V. Alexander revealed that the new 35,000-ton French battleship Richelieu was crippled at Dakar, French West Africa, in a daring raid by a British motorboat which dropped depth charges close under the Richelieu's stern and planes which torpedoed her.

Alexander said seven French capital ships have now been "accounted for" since the British last week served an ultimatum on the French fleet either to surrender or scuttle their ships to prevent them from falling into the hands of the axis powers.

Another Battle?
A naval battle within the pan-American neutrality zone was forecast in dispatches from Vichy, French government seat, declaring French fleet units blockaded at Martinique expected British warships to attack "at any moment."

A group of U. S. navy destroyers previously was reported en route to the Martinique area to act as observers of any sea clash which might violate the neutrality zone.

France's entry into the ranks of totalitarian states, under the domination of German conquest, appeared certain today when the French chamber of deputies approved, 395 to 3, a bill granting full powers to Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's government to write a new constitution.

Petain is expected to assume the title of "chief of state" in a virtual dictatorship—another link in the Nazi-fascist "chain store" system of European governments under the influence or direct mastery of Hitler's Germany.

Destroyer Lost
Rumania's fate under pressure of Hungarian demands for the return of the Rumanian province of Transylvania, which belonged to the old Austro-Hungarian empire before the world war, seemed near a settlement.

The British admiralty announced last night the torpedoing of the British destroyer Whirlwind, 23rd sunk since the war began.

Nazis in Berlin said a new campaign—by air and sea—had been launched against British shipping. Dient aus Deutschland said 330,000 tons of merchant shipping under the British flag or bound for Britain had been destroyed in the past eight days—a record bettering figures for any month since the war started.

German air-raiders stabbed at Britain all day Monday and on into this morning. The British said eight Nazi and three British planes were destroyed in the fighting. Casualties on the ground were "very few."

In Canada, preparations were being made to register all males and females over 14 years of age to further the organization and mobilization of human resources for war.

Martin O'Brien Rites To be Held Wednesday

Chicago—(P)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Martin J. O'Brien, Cook county public administrator and Democratic leader, who died of shock Saturday night shortly after he was rescued from drowning during a northern fishing trip.

Arthur P. O'Brien, secretary to Governor Horner, and John J. Hallinan, state director of registration and education, who were with Martin O'Brien when their boat capsized in Crawling Stone lake, arrived last night in Chicago.

Johnny St. Germaine, an Indian guide, rescued all three men, but Martin O'Brien collapsed and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Offer of Reward in Murders Still Stands

District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr said today that the county's offer of $1,000 reward still stands for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer or killers who shot Mrs. Anne Van Camp and her son, William, at their farm home near Freedom May 11.

Dohr said that no new developments have been covered, but that the case has not been closed. Two motorists were questioned last week regarding the case, but were released after their statements were checked.

$2,500,000 to Dodge's Widow In Settlement

Motor Heir Drowned
Soon After Marrying
Switchboard Operator

Pontiac, Mich.—(P)—The two-year litigation over the automotive fortune left by young Daniel G. Dodge was at an end today, and only legal formalities separated his widow, 22-year-old Annie Laurine Dodge, from the $2,500,000 which is to be her share.

Mrs. Dodge, who was a switchboard operator in Gore Bay, Ont., before her marriage, will receive that sum under a settlement approved yesterday in Oakland county probate court by Judge Arthur E. Moore. In return, she renounces all future claims on Daniel's estate and that of his father, John F. Dodge, who died in 1920 leaving an estimated $50,000,000.

Mrs. Dodge was widowed after 13 days of married life in August, 1938. Dodge, injured in a dynamite explosion at his Manitoulin island lodge in Georgian bay during the honeymoon, fell from a motorboat and drowned while being taken to a mainland hospital.

The young widow contested Dodge's will, which left her only $250,000 provided in a pre-nuptial agreement and the lodge on Manitoulin island.

From yesterday's division of the estimated $11,000,000 Daniel Dodge estate, Mrs. Dodge will receive approximately $1,070,000 after deduction of state and federal taxes. Daniel's three sisters and his mother, Mrs. Mathilda R. Wilson, receive the remainder.

The settlement also provided, however, for cash payment of $1,250,000 by the three sisters—Mrs. Wesson Seyburn, Mrs. Isabel Sloan and Mrs. Frances Johnson—in lieu of any further claims on Daniel's share of the motor millions.

An increase in her original widow's allowance from $5,000 to $7,500 monthly for a two-year period covering the time of litigation raises the total inheritance to $2,500,000.

Gottelman Seeks Zimmerman's Job

Milwaukee—(P)—Bernard Gottelman, state senator from Milwaukee, announced today that he would seek the Republican nomination as secretary of state in the September primary.

Gottelman, who headed the Wisconsin delegation of 24 to the Republican national convention in Philadelphia, will oppose Fred R. Zimmerman, the incumbent, in the primary race. Zimmerman announced last weekend that he would seek the office again.

"The Republican party must stick together to bring victory to the standard bearer, Wendell L. Willkie, in his campaign for the presidency," Gottelman said in announcing his candidacy.

"This is not the time to seek personal gains in politics," Gottelman continued, "for we must all stick together to put over Willkie and defeat the New Deal."

Joshua Johns Says Defense Funds are Enough for Present

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—Congressman Joshua L. Johns, Appleton Republican, opposes the further authorization of $3,000,000,000 for defense purposes, asked by the president because, he says, "I don't think we need it."

"The amount we have appropriated is sufficient to keep people busy on national defense until the next congress meets," Johns declared. "I am for adequate national defense, but I'm not for bankrupting the country in order to get it."

Congressman Frank B. Keefe, Oshkosh Republican, says that, in his opinion, there is a point at which the productive capacity of the United States is reached. Authorizing money up to 1947 is tying the hands of future administrations unwisely," he believes.

"There is only so much money the administrators of national defense can judiciously and wisely expend," the Oshkosh congressman says, "and I shall want further information on this subject before voting another $3,000,000,000."

Keefe admits, however, that "maybe the committee which reports the bill can give reasons why the authorization is required at this time."

He proposes that while congress is in session and has sufficient time, it should concern itself with the "real threat to this country, from economic penetration of the Axis powers into the Western hemisphere. It should study the protection of the United States from economic pressure that may be applied when the war in Europe is at an end," he says.

Dictatorship in France Will Fail, Writer Says

Despair Over Democracy's Ineptitude Is Given as Reason for Totalitarian Move

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

The big news of the day—so big that we cannot yet assay its undoubtedly far-reaching effect on world history—is word that the republic of France is preparing to establish a totalitarian dictatorship. The passing of any great institution of long standing is a shock. But it comes as a particularly hard blow to the average American to learn that we are about to lose that grand old motto—"Liberty, Equality, Fraternity" (Liberty, equality, fraternity)—which was born of the French revolution in 1792 as a declaration of the rights of man.

That was at almost the same date as our own republic came into being. For a hundred and fifty years France and America have marched along side by side since that time—fought under the same command to "make the world safe for democracy." Now La Belle France takes a different path.

This momentous development, and the rupture of Anglo-French friendship after many years of alliance, represent two of the major political changes which have grown out of the European upheaval. Almost overnight we are witnessing not only a radical turnover in the form of government of one of the great powers, but a tremendous shift in the balance of power in Europe.

Let's see what we can make of this involved and in many respects obscure situation. I think perhaps many of us have been making the position even more complicated than it is, by ascribing too many ulterior motives and perhaps too much outside influence to the changes. Here's the way the thing looks to me, from the evidence thus far at hand:

The change in government: The easiest explanation of this about-face is to attribute it to German compulsion, but while an element of Nazi duress likely is there, I doubt if this is the basic cause of the shift.

In Disfavor
We must go back a bit and note that the French government in recent years has been in disfavor with the general public. A fair mark of its standing was the fact that the members of parliament were a constant source of jokes for the music-halls, because the representatives were inactive. The people felt that the government merely was drifting.

Then came the Hitlerian earthquake. The people, and many of their political leaders, are totally crushed and heart-broken. They lay their plight to the inefficiency of the government in preparing to meet the Germans.

Now the people are ready to try a Fascist dictatorship to see if it won't prove more efficient and pull things together. If it weren't the straw that broke the camel's back, it would be another straw at which they would clutch in their despair.

I will predict, however, that no dictatorship will live long in France. "Liberty" is bred in the bones of the Frenchman. It is a birthright that has come down through generations. He will revert to the democratic form of government again as soon as he has pulled himself up by his boot-laces from his present troubles.

It should be remembered that we can't class France the same as most other European countries. The others never had democracy, but have always been under totalitarian rule, just a word without meaning for most of them.

The Anglo-French break in friendship: There are, of course, two French views of the British attack on the French warships, the destruction of numerous vessels and the killing of many sons of France. What I have to say has nothing to do with argument but is merely an effort to interpret the feeling of the average Frenchman.

De Gaulle's Comment
We can do no better than note the comment made yesterday by General Charles De Gaulle, head of the French national committee in London, whose followers are fighting with Britain against Germany. He characterized the British action as a "particularly cruel episode," but added that "it is better" that the ships were destroyed to prevent their use against the allies.

If De Gaulle, who is wholeheartedly with the British in making war against the Nazis, regards this as a "particularly cruel episode," it's easy to see how the French people as a whole look on it. They don't think in terms of the British feeling that they must take this action to save their empire and that of France as well. The French are thinking of their sailor boys who went down with their ships.

Again, 52 per cent of the French population are farmers. Their ancestors were farmers, perhaps on the same land. They love the earth, and couldn't have understood if their government had fled the soil of France, to England or to the colonies, and tried to conduct the war from there as some suggested.

This feeling goes far toward explaining why the Petain government felt it best to surrender, rather than try to carry on from some other country. The government felt, and many of the people undoubtedly feel, that their ally had no right to intervene after France had surrendered in good faith as a sovereign state.

If England should win the war and restore France to her former status, presumably the "cruel episode" would be forgiven. If the British lose, or the conflict develops a stalemate, the bitterness of feeling will remain. This would mean that, with the ending of the Anglo-French alliance, the balance of power in Europe rested in Hitler's hands.

Driver in Fatal Crash Gets 4-Month Sentence

Milwaukee—(P)—Frank Skarpac, 21, was sentenced to four months in the house of correction by Municipal Judge Max W. Nohl yesterday on a fourth degree manslaughter charge growing out of a fatal automobile accident.

Skarpac's car knocked down several trees and rolled over three times June 12, killing Joseph O'Connor, 50, a passenger.

B'nai B'rith Has 150,000 Members

Omaha—(P)—A national membership of 150,000 for B'nai B'rith, its women's auxiliaries and its junior order of Alphon Zadik Aleph gives the organization the highest figure in its 98-year history. Benjamin Samuels of Chicago, district 6 representative on the national executive committee, reported to the annual district convention of the Jewish fraternal and service organization.

The executive committee has selected Chicago as the scene of the 1941 triennial convention of the supreme lodge next March 29 to April 2.

Nominated to the general committee, the ruling body of the eight-state district between conventions were:

Minnesota-Wisconsin, Lewis E. Solomon, St. Paul, Minn.; southern Wisconsin, A. B. Schein, Madison; upper Wisconsin, David Rabinowitz, Sheboygan.

Cub Pow-Wow Slated for Erb Park July 27

Valley Council Cub
Packs to Make Camp,
Stage 11 Contests

The valley council's 1940 cub pow-wow will be held Saturday, July 27, at Erb park, according to Carl Witte, general chairman.

By 1:30 Cubs are to build tents and shelters, held up by either poles or ropes between trees. The shelters of the Cubs are left to their ingenuity, no manufactured tents being permitted.

At 1:30 Cubs and parents will repeat the pledge of allegiance to the flag, followed by the official inspection of the camp. The pow-wow affords an excellent opportunity for parents to spend a day with the family at the park, Witte said.

The game period will begin about 2 o'clock. Contests include prison step race, 100-yard dash, still race, ball throwing, auto tire race, burlap bag race, three-legged race, bean bag race, a dizzy lizzy race, baseball games and kite flying exhibitions.

Recognition of winners in each event will be made at 5:15. Attendance awards will be given to each Cub. The program will end with the singing of "God Bless America," and lowering of the flag.

Favor Peterson For Senate Seat

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Activity favoring Reuben W. Peterson of Berlin for the Republican senatorial nomination was reported this week in Outagamie county Republican circles.

Assemblyman Mark Catlin Jr., of Appleton, Republican representative of the first Outagamie county district, will take charge of the circulation of Peterson's nomination papers after a public announcement of his candidacy, expected soon, is made, it was reported here today.

Peterson and Catlin become fast friends in the 1937 and 1938 legislative sessions. Last year they shared the leadership of the administration majority in the assembly. Peterson resigned his legislative seat last summer to accept appointment to the public service commission from Governor Heil.

Aldermen Recommend Sewer Connections

At a committee of the whole meeting last night aldermen went on record as recommending to the council that property owners in the Whispering Pines and Glendale districts north of the city be granted connection with Appleton's sewer system. The entire cost, including that of the trunk sewer to the river, will be borne by the owners.

Two Churches Will Sponsor Lawn Socials

Methodist Pastor to Lecture at Meetings Of Des Plaines Camp

Two Appleton churches are taking advantage of the real summer weather which has arrived finally and will sponsor ice cream socials this week. The Social Aid of Emmanuel Evangelical church will hold its lawn social this afternoon and evening on the lawn of the home of the Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Blum, 310 E. Harris street, to which the public has been invited. District 8 of the Social Union of First Methodist church will sponsor an ice cream social Friday afternoon and evening on the church lawn. Mrs. Mell Buxton is captain of the circle.

Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of the Methodist church, will be in Chicago Wednesday, Thursday and Friday attending the Des Plaines camp meeting at which he will lecture daily on the Bible. He and his family returned Saturday from a vacation in northern Wisconsin. Next week Dr. Culver will be at Camp Byron for the adult week at which he will be dean.

The Fox River Valley Holiness association will convene at Wesleyan Methodist church Friday. The meeting will open at 10:15 and continue throughout the day, ending with a service at 7:45 in the evening. Speakers will be the Rev. L. J. Winslow, pastor of the Nazarene church at Oshkosh, and the Rev. P. J. Willcott, pastor of the Free Methodist church, Oshkosh. A basket lunch will be served at the city park. Mid-week prayer meeting will be at 7:45 Thursday night.

Ladies Aid society of Mt. Calvary Lutheran church, Kimberly, will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Paalman, Kimberly, with Mrs. Malcolm Moss as co-hostess. Plans for the builder festival July 21 will be completed.

League Meeting
At St. Paul Lutheran church this week there will be a Senior Fellowship league meeting at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at the school, and a Ladies Aid society meeting Thursday afternoon in the church basement. Announcements for communion next Sunday will be taken Friday afternoon and evening.

St. Matthew Lutheran Ladies Aid society will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the church basement.

Last evening the members of St. Mary parish bade farewell to the Rev. Lambert Scanlan, assistant pastor for the last 54 years, at an informal reception on the church lawn. Father Scanlan was presented with a purse.

Interesting Fact About Appleton

The Treaty of the Cedars, by which the white man displaced the red man as owner of the Fox river valley, was signed Sept. 3, 1836, at a place called "The Cedars."

The document ceded to the United States government more than 4,000,000 acres of land for $692,110 in cash.

The treaty was signed on the south side of Highway 41, directly north of the village of Kimberly at the foot of the hill approaching Little Chute.

The conference which was climaxed with the signing of the pact lasted from Monday, August 29, to Saturday, Sept. 3, according to a journal of the proceedings written by Henry Dodge, then governor of the Wisconsin territory.

At the conference were Dodge, leading chiefs of the Menominee Indians, Henry S. Baird of Green Bay, and Charles A. Grignon and William Powell who were interpreters.

When the proposition was first broached, Chief Oshkosh asked for an opportunity to confer with his men. He was given two days. The only provision of the treaty Chief Oshkosh objected to was that giving the Indians $1,000 a year for schools.

"We do not want schools. We do not wish our children to read papers," Chief Oshkosh said.

Farley Playing Difficult Role, Lawrence Says

Comments After Talk With President Being Analyzed Every Way

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The mysterious or rather cryptic comments made by Postmaster General Farley after his conference with President Roosevelt are being subjected to every form of logic and penetrating analysis, with the consequence that most people in Washington are frankly bewildered and puzzled about whether the president is to be the Democratic party's nominee for the presidency.

Little clues in Mr. Farley's comment are being seized upon as a basis for deduction. Thus, it is known the postmaster general had been opposed to a third term for the president. If Mr. Farley, therefore, said he had had a "satisfactory" conference with Mr. Roosevelt, it is far to assume that the president has bowed to the wishes of his hitherto principal political manager.

The answer must be in the negative because Mr. Farley also said he had talked "frankly" and the president had talked "frankly" which would rather seem to indicate a statement Mr. Farley didn't convince the president and Mr. Roosevelt didn't change the mind of his postmaster general.

Once again would seem to show which way the wind blows. Mr. Farley has for some time confided to friends that he did not intend to manage the Democratic National campaign this year. This applies whether Mr. Roosevelt or some one else is the nominee. So the gossip about Mr. Farley's possible affiliation with the New York Yankees baseball club would appear to be founded on the knowledge that after the coming convention, Mr. Farley will retire from public life here, unless the convention nominates him for the vice presidency.

Earlier Conferences
It is a fact that Mr. Roosevelt has discussed the 1940 presidential nominations with Mr. Farley several times. Mr. Farley came to the conclusion that the president did not intend to be a candidate and would not accept the nomination if offered. This was what prompted the postmaster general to allow his name to be put up for the presidency in various states, particularly in Massachusetts.

Now it is true that the postmaster general has not talked at length with the president about the third term situation for many months. Since then, "total war" has broken out in Europe. Many Democrats who previously were lukewarm about the idea now have come out for a third term for Mr. Roosevelt. It may well be that the president said to the postmaster general that he did not want a third nomination, but that he would be guided by what the convention delegates decided.

Thus it may very well happen that the convention will name Mr. Roosevelt and then he will decline it, after which the delegates will insist on his running by nominating him even after he has declined, thus making it the demand of a party and a draft movement. If Mr. Roosevelt at first declines and then accepts, it will result in a dramatic effort to persuade the country that the naming of Mr. Roosevelt was not controlled by him, but was the free action of the convention.

Nobody here feels very certain about it except the New Dealers. Almost as a unit they exude confidence about the outcome. The middle-of-the-road Democrats and also the other candidates are playing it safe. They are proceeding on both assumptions—they will be ready to clamor aboard the bandwagon if the president indicates he will accept, and they will be ready for the grand scramble if by chance Mr. Roosevelt is adamant in refusing the nomination.

Control Convention
One thing is certain. The New Dealers control the convention and have about 800 votes which will be cast to name Mr. Roosevelt. After the nomination has been made, someone—possibly Mr. Farley—will have a letter from the president to read to the convention. After that—well there's no telling what can happen after the declaration has been expressed.

The vice presidency probably will go to Justice Douglas of the supreme court. If, on the other hand, Mr. Roosevelt doesn't agree to run, the nominee may be Attorney General Jackson for president and Justice Douglas for vice president. This outcome is not expected by the attorney general, who firmly believes the president will accept the nomination and make the race.

Few men have had a more difficult part to play than Mr. Farley in his joint role of chairman of the Democratic National committee and member of the president's cabinet. As an astute political manager, he knows the depth of the third term issue and unquestionably has advised the president that it may cause an unlooked for upheaval such as did the president's bill to enlarge the supreme court in 1937. But in reply, Mr. Roosevelt may have said that all precedents have gone by the boards since total war broke out and that Mr. Farley was mistaken.

Willkie Took Popularity Lead Before Voting Began

By Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J. — A completed picture of the astonishing popularity of Wendell L. Willkie as a rank-and-file Republican choice for the presidency — one of the most revealing case studies of a presidential boom ever made — shows that in the final days before his actual nomination, Mr. Willkie passed all other GOP candidates and became the first choice of his party's "grass-roots" membership.

At late as March of this year the nationwide surveys of the American Institute of Public Opinion, conducted among Republican voters in all parts of the United States, found less than 1 per cent naming Willkie as their choice for the nomination. The GOP nominee was scarcely known at all in the west and mid-west, the surveys indicated.

Then, according to successive Institute studies, began a Willkie trend that gathered momentum with the passing weeks, until the actual moment of the nomination.

How Willkie sentiment mounted in the last days of the race is vent, or that Mr. Roosevelt would win.

Anyway, Mr. Farley's loyalty to the president and yet steadfast adherence to principle on the third term issue furnish an excellent example of circumspect demeanor in a delicate and difficult dilemma.

Control Convention

One thing is certain. The New Dealers control the convention and have about 800 votes which will be cast to name Mr. Roosevelt. After the nomination has been made, someone—possibly Mr. Farley—will have a letter from the president to read to the convention. After that—well there's no telling what can happen after the declaration has been expressed.

The vice presidency probably will go to Justice Douglas of the supreme court. If, on the other hand, Mr. Roosevelt doesn't agree to run, the nominee may be Attorney General Jackson for president and Justice Douglas for vice president. This outcome is not expected by the attorney general, who firmly believes the president will accept the nomination and make the race.

Few men have had a more difficult part to play than Mr. Farley in his joint role of chairman of the Democratic National committee and member of the president's cabinet. As an astute political manager, he knows the depth of the third term issue and unquestionably has advised the president that it may cause an unlooked for upheaval such as did the president's bill to enlarge the supreme court in 1937. But in reply, Mr. Roosevelt may have said that all precedents have gone by the boards since total war broke out and that Mr. Farley was mistaken.

shown by the fact that on June 21 — just three days before the convention opened in Philadelphia — the popular vote was Dewey, 47 per cent, Willkie, 29 per cent, Taft 8 per cent, and the remainder of the vote scattered among a dozen other candidates.

Makes Final Check

To see whether the phenomenal Willkie rise had continued during the actual convention period, the Institute's next regular ballot—sent to interviewers in all parts of the country late Tuesday night, June 25—contained the usual question for Republican voters: "Whom would you like to see elected President this year?"

Many political observers and statisticians had pointed out that if the Willkie boom were continuing among the rank-and-file at its previous rate, Mr. Willkie could be expected to pass the other leading candidates before the actual convention-balling began.

This proved to be the case.

Ballots from all sections of the country—covering the interviewing between Tuesday night and the actual nomination of Mr. Willkie on Thursday night—show the following division of sentiment:—

FINAL PRE-NOMINATION SURVEY

Wendell Willkie 44%
Thomas E. Dewey 29%
Robert A. Taft 13%
All Others 14%

Balloting which took place after the actual nomination shows the overwhelming majority of Republican voters swinging behind the party nominee, 89 per cent approving the choice of Mr. Willkie. This figure may, of course, increase as the party leaders unite behind the candidate.

4-Month Trend
To many political observers, largely convinced that popular choices are fixed well in advance of nominations and elections, the results of the Institute study will provide new material for thought. Certainly the results underline the necessity of following sentiment up to the very last moment.

The following figures show how the Willkie boom grew:—

	% Favoring Willkie
March 24	Less than 1%
May 8	3
May 17	5
May 31	10
June 12	17
June 21	29
June 27	44

Concert in New Kimberly Park

Community Band Will Play in Various Parts Of Village This Year

Kimberly—The Community band under the direction of Prof. M. J. Heynen, Green Bay, will offer its third outdoor concert Thursday evening in Kimberly's new park in the rear of the high school. Henry Vandenberg, secretary and manager of the band commission, said that he and Village President Lloyd Lang have agreed on a plan whereby band concerts could be held in various sections of the village. Workmen will have a band stand erected by Thursday.

The fourth concert will be played in the park on S. Washington street, near the village limits, possibly next week.

For this week's program John Maas will sing the "Woodpecker Song" and "Singing Hills." The program: March, "Bear Cat" Huffine; overture, "Tannred" Rossine; "Dance of the Maennikins" Losse; March, "Glory of the Trumpets" Brockenshire; Popular, "Singing Hills" Bergel; waltz, "Estudeantina" Waldteufel; overture, "Golden Scythe" Schlegel; march, "Stars and Stripes Forever" Sousa; popular, "Woodpecker Song" Woder; overture, "Sounds from the Sunny South" Iseman; "The Star Spangled Banner."

Telescope Uses Rays For Limitless Vision

Device Still Imperfect But Inventor Thinks It Will Be of Military Value

BY JOSEPH MORTON

Cleveland—Dr. Matthew Luckiesch reached into his desk drawer and brought out a neat, black metal telescope.

"Here is the only one of these in the world," he said proudly. "With it I could see from here to Chicago (320 airline miles)."

"Nothing but ultra-violet rays come into my telescope. Put a machine to discharge them anywhere within the horizon and I'll pick 'em up. By going up in an airplane, of course, I could stretch out the horizon as far as I wanted it."

Practically, the instrument remains in that strange, unknown land between today and tomorrow—but Dr. Luckiesch, one of the world's greatest authorities on light, feels "it should have some military uses."

"I thought of a telescope such as this during the World war," he said, recalling the countless hours he spent as national research council camouflage chairman. "It would have been useful in conveying darkened troops, for the pilots could have signaled back and forth with ultra-violet light, free from much danger that enemy submarines would see them."

"You can intercept the radio, telegraph, telephone. But intercepting the ultra-violet signals would be something else."

This pleasant man who directs General Electric's light research laboratory here has played a big part in prescribing for real life many things akin to the fantastic devices H. G. Wells has put into books.

Some now are existent—windowless houses, germ-killing lamps, X-ray diagnosis of materials in industry.

"Perhaps, beyond the horizon are motion picture theaters of past history," he speculated. "Traveling through space are scenes emitted in the form of patterns of electromagnetic energy ever since there was light on earth. A super-telescope of enormous electrical magnification may bring them out our screens—not merely events of today but of yesterday and of eons long past—unless cloudiness or darkness at the time extinguished these patterns."

Also beyond the horizon, but much nearer, Dr. Luckiesch sees

"Naw, lady, not bombs," said the investigating officer. "Those things are seltzer bottle capsules."

Taking France to the Cleaners

It is a truism that democracy becomes paralyzed when the people cannot think straight. And now that American correspondents are arriving in Portugal from which they may send uncensored dispatches a better and more complete picture of the French collapse is obtainable.

It wasn't all Blum and his New Deal. It wasn't all Hitler and his tanks. It wasn't all the Red-Bund behind the line. It wasn't all the fat and lazy contractors and corporate interests that became still more obese under the Popular Front.

Our correspondents have their prejudices and preconceived notions but they speak French as fluently as English, many of them have lived in France for 20 years, and for some reason natives often talk straighter and with less disguise to non-natives.

One of our correspondents says the French not only defeated themselves but were ripe for a revolution when the war came. Everywhere there was incompetence. Nowhere was there loyalty in the old sense but only a purpose to look out for one's self, and to run while the running was good.

It will take some Carlyle willing to read thousands of letters, messages, reports and pamphlets to form a more accurate conclusion than that available now but it is always best to remember that when a nation goes to rot the process of disintegration does not begin at the bottom but at the top. Whether the Blum New Deal carried on a degeneration that was already under way and merely accelerated it, which is likely, there can now be no doubt whatever that when that administration ended most of the French people virtually hated their government although for conflicting reasons.

The workers who had been promised shorter hours, higher pay and no increase in prices were irate because the program was physically impossible although they did not seem to realize that fact. They had surrendered their right to think and answered only to the biggest promises. The business interests were prone on the ground. Blum had capitalized class hatred until the shop looked upon the office as its mortal foe. The farmers, promised magnificent subsidies, fumed when they were not forthcoming, as they simply could not be. The air in general was rent with venomous backbiting as the fat corporate interests that were in favor, and paid out part of their ill-gotten gains to keep the pirate political machine in operation, became fatter, lazier and still shorter of breath.

When you come to think of it what was there in such a government worth fighting for? How could soldiers be expected to die unflinchingly for a rank carcass like that in a position of authority? What was there about a false and bloated government of this nature to inspire fidelity and strengthen the striking arm?

France literally fell apart disgusted at herself. A bootblack's promise was better than a prime minister's. The honor of a blotched cognac pourer was much higher than that of a political party. Democracy had merely played the part of a swilling swine and reaped its just reward, which is not more in the trough but the butcher's knife.

It will not be difficult despite the habits of a life-time for France to discard democracy, as she must, at least until she can build back and get men to work who were taught that true glory is to be found on a bar stool.

The crying pity of this great and hideous debacle is that in order to avert it it was necessary for the people to understand only a basic but simple rule—you cannot spend yourself to safety, you cannot gain prosperity lying in bed, you cannot make an efficient or decent nation by encouraging sloth and corruption and discouraging work and sweat.

Years Upon Years of Deficits

When the bells chimed midnight upon the last day of June this country had seen for the first time in its history 10 straight years of national deficits.

primarily by extravagance or excessive spending. They were induced largely by the unexpected slump in income tax receipts occasioned by the depression.

Six days after he became president Mr. Roosevelt was still of a mind to keep his campaign pledge to the American people because he stated to congress: "For three long years the federal government has been on the road toward bankruptcy."

That, it may be remembered, was the general nature of his repeated attacks upon Mr. Hoover. But shortly thereafter he made up his mind to drive headlong toward the goal of the bankruptcy he had denounced, with all the speed he could muster.

During the fiscal year just ended the deficit came to $3,612,000,000, greater than any Roosevelt accomplishment to date. The actual deficit in 1936 was larger but that was not Mr. Roosevelt's fault. The veteran's bonus was to blame.

One of the most disheartening things is that the largest deficit comes at the end of seven years' New Deal effort, and in a year when only a comparatively trivial amount was spent for the national defense. Besides all this discouragement must be listed the fact that the greatest deficit occurred in spite of rapidly increasing receipts, since the income of the government last year was almost six billions.

Thus it is evident that the higher taxes go and the greater the river of gold that wends its way to Washington the bigger the deficits grow and the greater becomes our national debt. In facing the necessity of increased armaments we find our treasury in dangerous shape; and if we actually had to go to war our ruin might not be so far away.

Naked fairness alone sets this administration apart as afflicted with a great disease which may be called super-extravagance. Spending so completely dominates its thoughts that it has lost control over its normal functions just as a drunkard finally surrenders without restraint to the bottle.

Mr. Roosevelt can make fine speeches, gild beautiful promises, roll out high-sounding language of kindness, sweetness, peace and love, but he cannot balance a budget, shut off national extravagance nor, in fact, be trusted to keep a promise.

Crazy Salaries

It was sorry news for the government of the United States when Louis B. Mayer, head of one of the picture concerns, only drew down a salary of $688,000 last year.

Mr. Mayer's salary the year before had been about $500,000 more.

The loss doesn't mean so much to Mr. Mayer as it does to Washington since, roughly, the taxing authorities would have received 70 per cent of it.

Mr. Mayer will have to try to do better this year. He may find it necessary to shoot a few clay pigeons to polish up his aim.

In fact Washington is all agog about these fellows with the big incomes. If they fail what, indeed, will happen to the treasury?

The nation must come to look upon these fat-pocketed boys as its patriotic minute men. Really, they are sent out to shoot the geese. And the geese are the people.

Our government hasn't enough courage to let the people know what it is costing them to support the wild extravagances of professional squanderers so it seeks out a good many hopefuls like Mr. Mayer but it insists on getting the larger share of the swag and this doesn't make the hopefuls so enthusiastic.

A man like Mr. Willkie who only received $75,000 a year, but earned it, was of little use to the government. And when the Republican nominee refused to take an increase in salary he practically curdled the milk in the Roosevelt refrigerator. He wasn't "broad minded" at all.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell
ON A DARK MORNING
On a dark morning
A bird is singing.
Into the shadow
A bright thought winging.
He must be sure
That the clouds will pass.
The sun will shine,
On the wind-blown grass.
On a dark morning
I am rejoicing,
Glad for the message
The day is voicing.
The winged bird singing
And poised in flight,
Knows that the darkness
Must yield to light!

Opinions of Others

THE DEADLY PARALLEL
We are told one minute that France should be an object lesson, that the French example warrants our hastily appropriating billions for defense and imposing compulsory military training; yet we expect to conscript soldier labor at $30 a month for 24-hour service while we refuse even to demand of preparedness labor that it add to its work-week without the government paying overtime penalties. This is conspicuous decadence of political leadership, for it shows that leadership knows what ought to be done but is too weak to demand it of the pressure bloc.

The connection of the underworld with at least one of our major pressure blocs, the A.F.L., has been thoroughly exposed; but senators still take orders from the A.F.L., some depend on racketeer-controlled unions for reelection. The connection of Communists with other pressure groups has also been exposed, but our administration is too weak to offend the Communists by eradicating them. Rather it tries to compromise with them. Again the French parallel.—Chicago Journal.

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—More alert minds in the Roosevelt administration have been doing some very careful thinking about what is going to happen to American trade in the future. The picture is far from optimistic. Here are some of the things they have concluded:

After this war is over it is almost inevitable that the world will be divided into four great trading areas. They will be:

1. Japan and China, comprising about 450,000,000 people and falling under the totalitarian domination of Japan.
2. Germany, which will exercise life and death rule over about 400,000,000 people, including all the nations of Europe.
3. Russia, which will govern the trade of about 200,000,000 people.
4. The United States, Canada and South America—if we can still keep the latter under the Monroe Doctrine. These will represent about 350,000,000 people.

In the first three of these economic areas, foreign trade will be completely controlled by government monopolies. For instance, Germany operating on a slave wage scale and a socialized system, will be able to cut prices and undersell the United States throughout South America. Already Germany is offering steel in Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires for September delivery far under prices quoted by U. S. steel mills.

Japan, which is sure to industrialize China, also will pay slave wages, and will do the same.

U. S. ALTERNATIVES

Therefore the United States, in order to continue any kind of export trade whatsoever, will have to do one of four things:

1. Reduce wages to a level approximating the starvation standards paid in Germany.
2. Reduce profits, or eliminate them altogether, if German prices are to be met.
3. Subsidize industry and virtually take it over, as under the Nazi, Fascist, and Soviet systems.
4. Create a foreign trade monopoly. This is what the Russians have done for more than a decade, and what the Nazis have been doing more recently. All exports abroad are sold through the government and imports are purchased the same way.

It is this last system which New Deal advisers consider least objectionable of the four, and upon which they are concentrating.

Naturally, the handling of U. S. exports and imports through a government monopoly is a long, long way from the Hull trade treaties, which are based upon most-favored-nation treatment, low tariff walls, and the principle that every nation should treat the other as it wants to be treated.

HULL'S ROWS

Professor Moley, when assistant secretary of state, had terrific rows with his chief over export-import trade quotas and the right to barter.

Even in 1933 Moley thought Hull's trade treaties were old-fashioned.

Later George Peek, head of the Export-Import bank, took up the cudgels with Hull and fought for government quotas which would fix the amount of goods to be imported from certain countries.

In each battle the veteran secretary of state won. The fight with Moley resulted in his resignation. Peek hung on for months, but finally was purged.

Now, however, New Deal master minds have come around to exactly the same theories proposed by Moley and Peek—except that they go even further. They maintain in this day and age, with the full weight of the German government bartering for trade, a single U. S. business man has about as much chance as a single workman bargaining with an employer.

NATIONAL DEFENSE COMMISSION

The members of the National Defense commission are a genuine cross-section of the American "melting pot."

Two of them, Knudsen and Hillman, are of immigrant origin. One, Stettinius, is the son of a J. P. Morgan partner. Another, Chester Davis, was born on a farm and has devoted his career to agriculture. Another member, Miss Elliott, is a professional woman and a champion of consumer interests. Another, Ralph Budd, is a railroad man who worked his way up from the bottom, and sitting next to him is a former college professor and economist, Leon Henderson.

Thrown together suddenly to execute a stupendous job, it was widely predicted that there would be friction and trouble within the group. The commission has been functioning for nearly two months, and as far as these observers can ascertain, there isn't an agency in Washington which operates more harmoniously and smoothly.

PHONEY G-MEN

If you are an employer and get a call from an FBI agent, it is a good idea to make him show you his credentials. All genuine G-men are under orders to do that and for a very good reason.

In the past week the Justice department has received complaints from employers that fake FBI agents have demanded the dismissal of workers who they claim were "un-American" and "radicals."

Impersonating a federal officer is a serious offense and J. Edgar Hoover has assigned some of his crack men to investigate these fakes. At no time does Hoover ever recommend the hiring or firing of any employee.

BRITISH CHILD REFUGEES

There is something awfully strange about the way the state department is functioning in regard to the admission of refugee children from war-bombed England. Although the sympathies of the entire country are strongly pro-Ally, although Mrs. Roosevelt is chairman of the Children's Refugee Committee, and although both Secretary Hull and Sumner Welles sympathize with the admission of refugee children, the career men in the state department have turned thumbs down.

This means that the British child refugee plan probably will not make any real headway for several months, probably not until the bombing of England is over.

CZECH SHOE WORKERS

The man primarily responsible for this ruling is Avra M. Warren, a very able career diplomat, who as chief of the Visa Office has a virtual life or death power over thousands of European refugees.

Mr. Warren's present action contrasts strongly with his admission of German subjects. When Senator Tydings of Maryland requested the admission of 100 Czech-German shoe workers to the United States in competition with American shoe workers, Mr. Warren gave them exactly the same type of visitor's visa which he now denies to the children of England.

Since then, the Bata shoe factory, which was established in Maryland, has been fined for violation of the wage-hour laws, enjoined against the use of child labor, and fined by a federal court for setting up radio communication to Europe without permission.

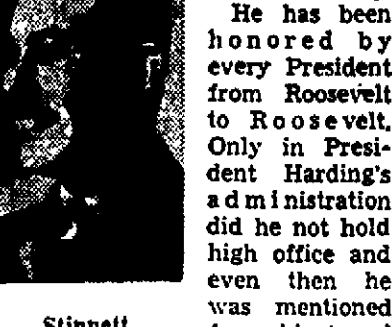

(Copyright, 1940, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Despite the war with Japan, the Chinese have drafted a new constitution for their country including a law against child labor and provisions for minimum wages and maximum hours.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Being appointed to high office by executives of the Democratic party is nothing new to Republican Henry Lewis Stimson.

He has been honored by every President from Roosevelt to Roosevelt. Only in President Harding's administration did he not hold high office and even then he was mentioned for cabinet and legal posts.

The appointment of Stimson as Secretary of War isn't even the first time that F. D. R. has recognized the talents of the man who had nothing to do with politics until he was 40 years old. In 1938, Roosevelt named him to the Hague Court and, on another occasion, asked him to be one of two men on an important treaty mission to South America.

So certain must Stimson have been that he would come back to Washington some day, that he never relinquished ownership of historic Woodley, a lovely old house on a 16-acre estate at 3000 Cathedral Avenue. The rambling old mansion of pre-Civil war construction was bought by Stimson when he was Secretary of State under President Hoover. It used to be the summer White House of President Cleveland.

He Rode Into Politics

It's only a stone's throw from the spot in Rock Creek park where Stimson actually galloped into politics. Elihu Root and President Teddy Roosevelt were out for an early morning horseback ride. Root saw Stimson riding across the creek and remarked to the President that he probably would be a good man for the post of district attorney in New York. The President said, "Call him over." Root hailed Stimson and the latter, disregarding the steep bank, dashed into the creek at breakneck pace, caught up his horse as he stumbled in midstream and brought him lathering and rearing up the near-bank.

T. R. cried, "Magnificent horseman! Magnificent!" and without further ceremony asked him to take the New York federal prosecuting attorney job.

Stimson probably is the only Secretary of War (he also held the post under Taft) graduated from the Army War College.

Before that, however, in the World War, as a colonel, he was appointed to the judge advocates' division. Then, although over 50, he was assigned to command in the 31st field artillery where he served for the duration and got decorations from both Britain and France.

After he returned he checked in at the war college and completed the super-super army courses that are the last word in military tactics.

His Parrot And Goat

When things calm down, I'm going to take a run out to Woodley and find out whatever became of "Old Soak" and "William Hamilton Bones." Probably no man ever had two pets who were better known than "Old Soak," the parrot who spoke Chinese, English and an Irish brogue and could swear like a marine in all three languages; and "Billy Bones," the goat who would butt a mile for a package of any kind of cigarettes.

Stimson brought them back with him from the Philippines in 1929. "Old Soak" came through with feathers unruined, but "Billy Bones" ran into trouble with immigration authorities and it took practically an act of Congress to get him through the customs.

"Old Soak" got along all right in the United States, too, picking up his Irish brogue from a caretaker on the Stimson's Long Island estate. It was only in the presence of ladies that "Old Soak" cut up in a fashion to embarrass his master, interspersing his Chinese and Irish with oaths that he never could have learned at Woodley.

"Billy Bones" didn't fare so well. His inordinate fondness for cigarettes got him down. He fell into the habit of chasing everyone who carried a package and if he caught them, he ate right through the pocket. At last report, he had been exiled to a Maryland farm.

That was nearly ten years ago and nothing has been heard here of parrot or goat since. I'm going to find out about them. Folks like "Old Soak" and "Billy Bones" shouldn't be allowed to drop out of the news like that.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

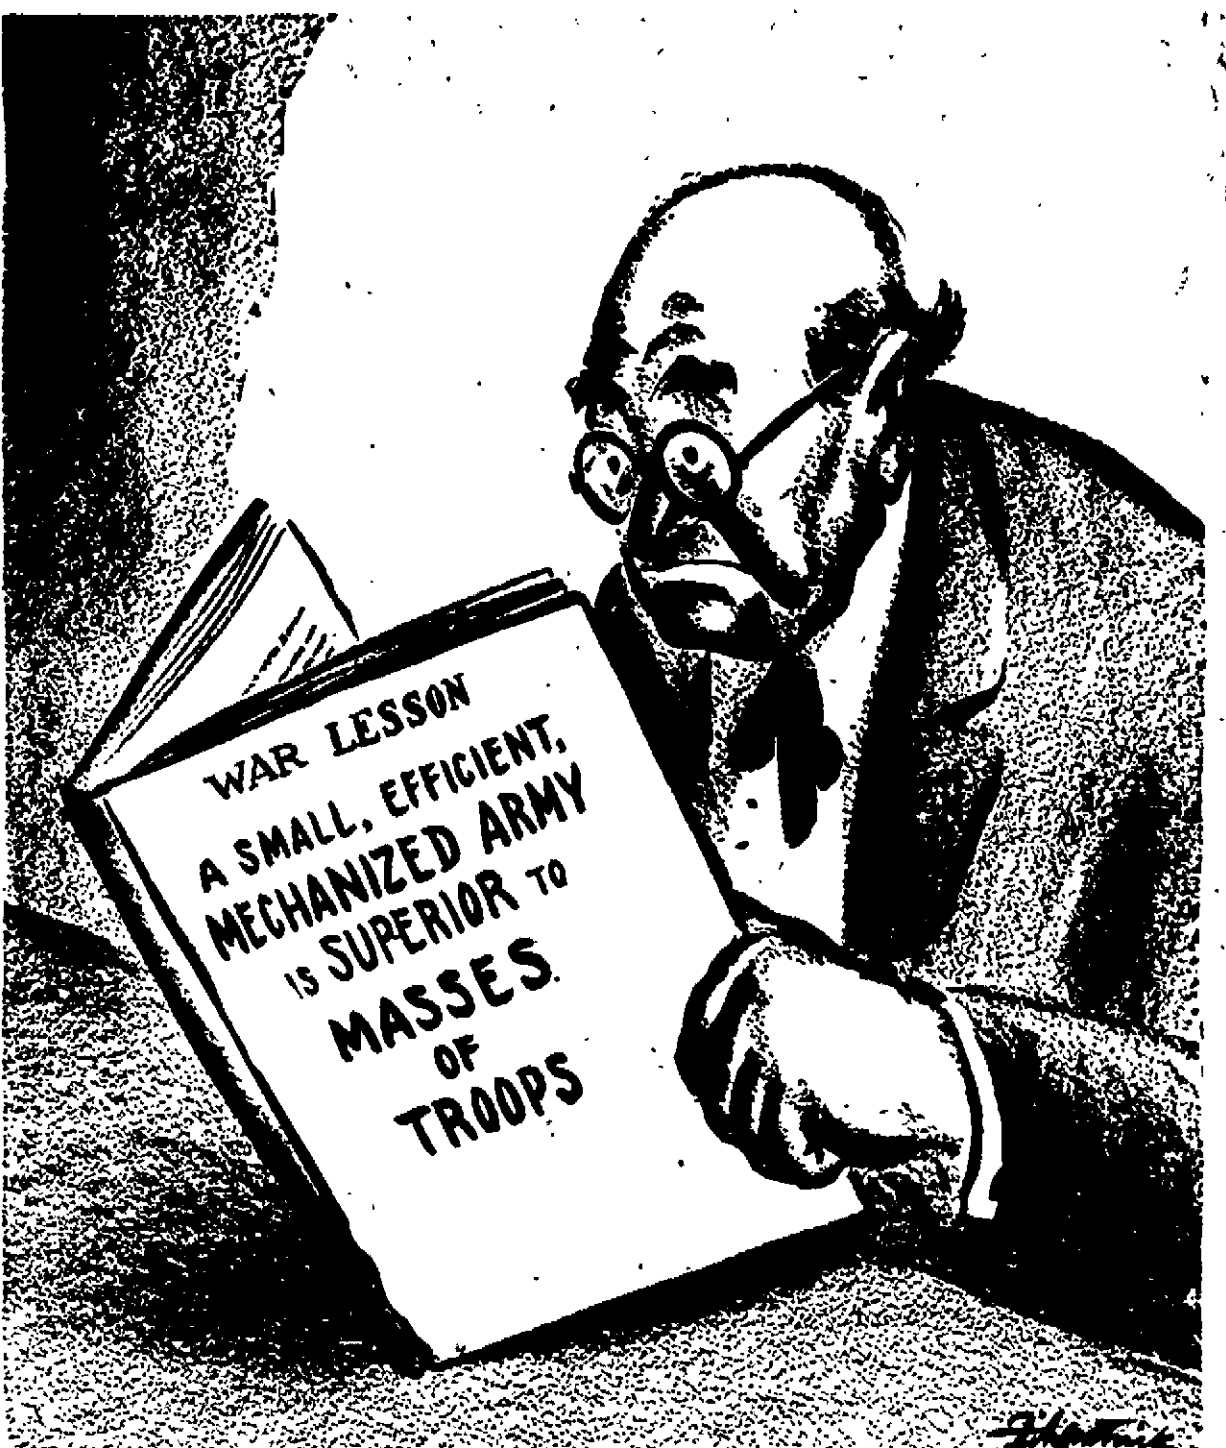

In those Mexican elections they count the casualties first and the votes second.

On the basis of hospital calls, with thirty-six ambulances missing, both sides at first claimed the victory. The loser will want the right to shoot the election over again anyhow. I figure.

Nearly a score of persons were killed and 300 wounded in Mexico City alone. An ammunition shortage slowed up the complete returns. I see President Roosevelt has told Jim Farley whether he will run for a third term, but "in strict secrecy." Jim had a long huddle at Hyde Park and he now knows Franklin's intentions. And presumably Franklin knows Jim's. But it's all a matter that the public can't be trusted to know about.

The French have bombarded the British at Gibraltar. They'd better begin numbering the players in that war, it's getting too involved.

Nine U. S. presidents were Episcopalians; six were Presbyterians, the leading denominations of that office.

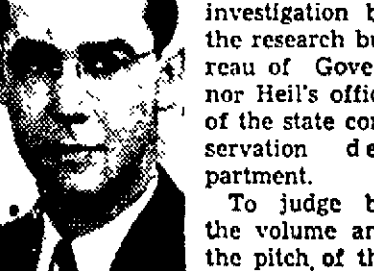

Congress Needs Compulsory Military Training

Under the CAPTIVELDOM

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Highly difficult to appraise objectively is the quarrel which now promises to reach new heights of bitterness and recrimination, the quarrel over the investigation by the research bureau of Governor Heil's office of the state conservation department.

To judge by the volume and the pitch of the arguments about Mr. Frey and his scrutiny of the department, the current investigation will become the cause celebre of the second year of the Heil term.

As in most political, or quasi-political disputes, however, the respective disputants each have wandered somewhat from the strictly dispassionate and objective path.

Frey has taken the attitude throughout the investigation that there have been some irregular goings-on in the conservation department, and by gum, I'm going to expose those rascals for the taxpayers—before the election if possible.

The department managers and their friends and supporters, on the other hand, have promptly accused Frey and the administration of political bias, of job hunger, of ignorance and an unwillingness to hear the truth, of a desire to smear the administration of the department.

THE SCORE

The truth is that there is something to be said on behalf of each side.

It is true—this correspondent has sat through every hearing thus far—that Frey has been somewhat bellicose, that his lawyer, Fornary, has maintained an irritating belligerence toward all department witnesses that there has been a tendency to dismiss impatiently conservation values for an emphasis on dollars and cents.

A part of Frey's difficulty is his impulsive habit of speaking out in bad temper, of expressing, rather pontifically and very angrily, opinions on conservation matters which look somewhat ridiculous in print. Yet there is no evidence that a desire to oust department personnel for patronage reasons activates Frey's policies in the investigation. As a matter of fact, Frey has been more tolerant, and started the hearings with less prejudice against some department officials than other have had the governor's ear.

THE OTHER SIDE

On the other side of the score book is the fact that some of the department's employees haven't been exactly willing or cooperative witnesses. Flashes of bad temper can also be charged up to the department heads.

Moreover, the defenders of the department who have published contemptuous denunciations of Frey and his investigation consistently ignore the concrete revelations which his probing has thus far brought forth, the disclosure that on at least two separate occasions the department sanctioned the trading of state lands with its employees through the subterfuge of a third person, without notifying the conservation commission that a criminal statute was thus being evaded.

Five members of the conservation commission—including W. J. P. Aberg who is the most able and the most articulate of the critics of the investigation—have testified for the bureau's record that they cannot and will not tolerate such land exchange policies.

There is going to be a lot of name-calling this summer in the name of conservation, and the taxpayer who foots the state conservation bill.

CAUSES OF DIABETES

Emotional or nervous disposition, formerly regarded as a factor of diabetes, is not so regarded today. More Jews past forty have diabetes than any other people—not because they are of nervous or emotional disposition but because they live too well—that is, they eat too much and get too little exercise. Perhaps the diabetic potentiality or tendency is more commonly passed to children of Jewish parents because Jewish people intermarry. Remember, it has been estimated that 25 per cent of the entire population of this country now carry the potentiality or tendency to diabetes.

That diabetes is in most instances a luxury disease is suggested by one of the older authorities, Von Noorden, who found that in London and Berlin there were more cases among the upper ten thousand than among the lower hundred thousand inhabitants. Moreover, in most instances diabetes develops after the age of fifty years, when the man or woman is likely, if circumstances permit, to take life easy, so far as physical exertion goes.

Dr. Osler, scarcely an authority from the present point of view, was nevertheless a wise observer. In his "Practice of Medicine" he said "The combination of intense application to business, over-indulgence in food and drink, with a sedentary life, seems particularly prone to produce the disease."

Dr. Brady, scarcely an authority about anything at any time, would strike out the nonsense about "intense application to business" and assure you the rest of Osler's observation is unchanged in effect. Intense application to business, financial responsibilities and all that quaint Yankee malarkey is all very well in a novel or a movie but not in medical literature.

The more we learn about diabetes the more apparent does it become that the important causes are those already considered:

1. Inheritance of the tendency or potentiality, a deficiency either in the organic structure of the islands of Langerhans or in the internal secretory capacity of these cell groups.
2. Overeating, especially of refined carbohydrates, that is, foods rich in starch or sugar but deprived of most of the vitamin B complex that grew in the food—for example, refined white flour.
3. Lack of daily exercise, physical work or play.
4. In consequence of overeating and insufficient exercise, accumulation of slacker flesh, excess weight, obesity, after thirty-five.

In emphasizing the importance of these factors of diabetes I do not mean to deny that in some instances other factors are concerned. These are nevertheless the causes every adult concerned about diabetes should consider. Diabetes in children is a question entirely beyond my province—that is, I can offer no general suggestions or advice about it, because in every instance it is an individual problem which demands the personal care of the family physician. Please note I say the family physician not a specialist.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Doctors Are People

Any reference, information or help I can give a medical colleague is available for the asking—but this department of Personal Health Service has grown to a time-consuming job. Physicians who request replies will please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope, just like people. (O' Doc Brady).

Sometime soon somebody is going to ask why squabbling must be perennially associated with the state's conservation administration.

Home Medicine

Please repeat the instructions for the use of quinine for bedwetting. (Mrs. H. W. O.)

Ans.—Send a stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for monograph, "Quinine in Modern Medicine."

Five More Men Enter Race for County Offices

New Candidates Will Seek Jobs of Sheriff And District Attorney

Five more candidates for county offices in the fall election have secured nomination papers at the office of John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk. Two of the candidates will seek election as assemblyman, one as register of deeds, another as sheriff and the fifth as district attorney.

William J. Flatley, 131 S. Oneida street, is the latest entry in the race for district attorney. He will campaign on the Republican ticket. There are five other lawyers seeking the same office.

Fred W. Giese, 118 E. North street is the tenth candidate to appear for the office of sheriff. Giese, who is a former county sheriff, will run on the Republican ticket.

Gus E. Hanges, Kimberly, Republican, and William E. Rohan, route 3, Kaukauna, Democrat, are the newest candidates for the assembly from the Second district. Other candidates for the office are Arthur Zulches, Seymour, Republican; and Arthur Hollihan, Kaukauna, Progressive.

Candidates have until July 30 to file nomination papers.

Board Takes Paving Bids

Receives Offers for 1 1/2 Ton Truck but Waits for Tabulation

Bids for the paving of the Wisconsin avenue intersection at Meade street, a 1 1/2 ton truck for the street department and sewer laterals at Superior and Winnebago streets were opened at the board of public works met Monday afternoon.

The paving offers were referred to the city engineer for tabulation. Contractors and their bids were Robert Schultz, $704.75; Holtz and Bass, $759.20; Simpson and Parker, $855; and Koepke Construction company, $923.75.

Bids on a 1 1/2 ton truck also were referred to the engineer, who will give his tabulation to the street and bridge committee of the council. Bids were George J. Schwab, $995; Walter Motor company, $1,295; Four Wheel Drive Auto company, $3,000; Milhaup Spring and Auto Co., $1,199; Peotter's service, $1,264; August Brandt company, $988; O. R. Kloehn company, $1,139.

Sewer lateral bids, referred to the engineer for tabulation, were, Superior street, Ervin Thomas, $1 per foot, Frank Bartz, $1.05, John McHugh, $1.25; Winnebago street, Thomas, 90 cents, Bartz, 93 cents, and McHugh, $1.10.

The Weather

Forecast for Wisconsin: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

General Weather Conditions: Showers have occurred since Monday morning over sections of the plains states, the central and southern Mississippi valley and the southeastern states, with heavy rain falling over portions of Alabama and Georgia. Fair weather prevailed this morning over the New England states and generally from the plains states westward.

Rather warm weather continued this morning over most of the central and eastern states, and temperatures are rising over the northern Rocky mountains and Canadian northwest.

Generally fair and rather warm weather is expected to this section tonight and Wednesday.

Probate Cases to be Heard in County Court

Hearing of 11 probate cases is scheduled in county court of Judge Fred V. Heinemann next Tuesday. Cases are hearings on the wills of Charles W. Mory, J. Henry Gellen and August Winter, hearing on administration in the estate of John McKeever, hearings on claims in the estates of Joseph Derus, Sr., Patrick Foy, Nellie Spierings, Mary Meyer and Hysen Powless and hearings on final account in the estates of Arnold G. Myse and Gustav Ristau.

Fined for Drunkenness

Patrick McCauley, arrested in the town of Greenville, pleaded guilty of drunkenness and was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 10 days in the county detention camp by Acting Judge Fred V. Heinemann in municipal court this morning. McCauley indicated he would serve out the sentence.

Injures Hand

Ed Kessler, 36, 1103 N. Union street, suffered some cut tendons on his hand when it became caught in a paper machine at the Combined Locks mill early today. He is confined to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Johns Opposed to Quick Approval of New Defense Funds

Washington. —(P)—A note of opposition to additional appropriations above the $6,000,000,000 mark for national defense at this time was struck today by representative (R-Wis.).

The congressman, planning to remain here during the recesses of congress for the Democratic national convention, said he accepted an invitation to speak at the Indian mission at Oneida, Wis., July 27.

Johns supported past emergency appropriations for the defense program but declared in a statement that he was opposed to the new proposal of President Roosevelt for an additional $5,000,000,000 "for the present."

"Congress already has made about $6,000,000,000 available to spend for this purpose and congress will be in session again Jan. 3," he said. "Apparently congress also will remain in session in the meantime and we don't need to vote any more money now."

Fair Weather For Tomorrow

Mercury Rises After Slight Drizzle This Morning; 71 at Noon

A slight drizzle for about two hours this morning gave Appleton residents a little coolness before the thermometer started climbing again. It was 71 at noon atop the Post-Crescent building, with the mercury rising. There's no danger of a heat wave, however, for weather reports predict generally fair weather to-night and Wednesday with little change in temperature.

Maximum and minimum marks for the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 84 at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 64 at 8 o'clock this morning, according to records at the power plant of Wisconsin Michigan Power company. Only traces of precipitation were observed this morning.

Highest and lowest marks in the nation during the last 24 hours were at Phoenix, Ariz., with 114 degrees, and at Seattle with 48, according to the Associated Press.

Report Rumania Is Determined Not to Yield to Hungary

Bucharest. —(P)—Rumanian government quarters insisted today that "Rumania does not recognize any justification for eventual Hungarian territorial demands and is resolved not to accept them."

The statement was made as Hungarian Premier Count Pal Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky enquired from Budapest for Germany, to discuss Hungary's claims for return to her of the Rumanian province of Transylvania with the German and Italian foreign ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, and possibly with Adolf Hitler.

Official quarters here said Rumania would consider only an exchange of populations as a means of settling Hungary's 20-year claim on Transylvania, which was a Magyar province before the World war.

"The only grounds on which Rumania will be disposed to accept discussions with Hungary in a large and benevolent spirit might be that of a reciprocal exchange of populations," these quarters said.

"Such an exchange, to the exclusion of territorial cession, might have a satisfactory result for the two nations, with good economic consequences and the establishment of good neighbor relations.

"These would give excellent results to the two countries and to all of the countries in this part of Europe."

Employers Mutual to Erect New Building

Wausau. —(P)—The Employers Mutual Liability Insurance company announced plans today for construction of a new three story home office here to cost $400,000.

The company has purchased a block in which a clubhouse and six dwellings are located and plans to start construction soon, with the completion date set for next June 1.

The insurance company has been occupying four floors in a bank building and in four other buildings.

The company employs 900 persons, 300 of them in Wausau.

Technocrats Hear Section Director

Berle Dodge, Neenah director of section 88443 of Technocracy, Inc., addressed about 50 members of the Appleton section last night at its regular meeting. Dodge spoke on technological application in North America and results of use of technology and power on the social system. Marvin Wasserbach was chairman.

The official magazine of the organization is expected to be here for distribution at Monday's meeting. Wasserbach announced.

Pension Workers to Attend District Meet

Taber S. Davis, county pension director, and three or four members of the pension department will attend a bimonthly meeting of the Northwestern Wisconsin Association of Pension Departments at Sturgeon Bay Wednesday. A luncheon will be held at noon.

On the basis of 1938 statistics, Wisconsin had the lowest typhoid fever death rate in the United States, and the third lowest diphtheria death rate.

Teel, Whitman Given Awards

Civic Certificates Presented by Johnson; Wadsworth Is Speaker

Certificates for civic activity were awarded to Clark T. Teel, manager of the Appleton Sears and Roebuck store, and to J. R. Whitman, manager of the local branch of J. C. Penney company, at the Lions club meeting yesterday noon at Conway hotel. George E. Johnson, first vice president of Appleton Chamber of Commerce, made the presentation. The certificates were given by the magazine, National Chain Store Age.

The application of many inventions in a modern telephone system was described by T. B. Wadsworth, district commercial agent of Wisconsin Telephone company.

Wadsworth traced the development of the telephone cable to the largest cable which contains 4,242 single wires encased in a lead sheath no larger than a man's wrist. A new type of cable, called coaxial, is now being installed between Stevens Point and Minneapolis, Wadsworth said. It is the first installation of its kind in this country for commercial use. Utilizing a wide range of electrical frequencies, the coaxial cable about an inch in diameter, will permit the transmission of 480 simultaneous long distance conversations.

The Bell system includes about 80 million miles of copper wire over which voices travel, the speaker concluded. Ninety-six per cent of this wire is inside lead cable sheaths. About 72 per cent is underground and is never seen by telephone users.

Two Pay Fines for Reckless Driving

Two motorists pleaded guilty of reckless driving and were fined $10 and costs each by Acting Municipal Judge Fred V. Heinemann in municipal court yesterday afternoon. The motorists, who were arrested by county police, are John Joseph Omachinski, Menasha, and Morris Lindley, route 2, Black Creek. Omachinski was arrested in the town of Vandenberg, and Lindley in the town of Grand Chute.

Mark Powless, Oneida, pleaded guilty of failing to stop after an accident and was fined $1 and costs. He sidestepped a car on N. Meade street in a minor accident July 5.

Evan Jepson, Bear Creek, pleaded guilty of driving with insufficient lights and was fined $5 and costs.

Urges Truck Owners To Obtain Licenses

Madison. —(P)—George W. Rickman, commissioner of the state motor vehicle department, advised truck owners today to avoid a last minute rush by making immediate application for new licenses, which they must have by July 15.

Rickman said a careful checkup would be made after the deadline to see that all trucks have proper plates.

For a vehicle re-registered as a farm truck no "farm use" affidavit will be required unless there has been a change of ownership, but affidavits will be necessary for new trucks licensed in that classification, he said.

Fined $10, Costs for Assault and Battery

William Horn, 145 S. Walter avenue, was found guilty of assault and battery and was fined $10 and costs by Acting Municipal Judge Fred V. Heinemann in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Clara Eichinger, Appleton, was the complainant.

Exchange Meets

About 30 members of Appleton Credit Exchange held a regular meeting last night at Copper Kettle Tea Room. A 5:30 dinner preceded the business session.

Theoretically, most accidents are preventable, but practically, our state of civilization has grown so complex, so highly mechanized and so speed-craving that it is small wonder that accidents are listed as Wisconsin's fourth leading death cause.

House of Orleans Hopes for Its Restoration in France

Bern, Switzerland. —(P)—France's forgotten family—the House of Orleans—hopes for restoration of the throne in the virtual totalitarian dictatorship which Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain is reported forming in the new French state.

Reports reaching Switzerland today said the bearded Duke of Guise, claimant of the French throne, and his young heir, the Count of Paris, have renewed their bid for recognition working under protection of the Spanish Nationalist government at their headquarters near Larache, Spanish Morocco.

Dispatches from Vichy, new seat of the German-vanquished French government, have said the 84-year-old Premier Petain would become "chief of state" under a new constitution described as "corporative"—the term Italian fascists apply to Premier Mussolini's government.

Team Wins in District Meet

County 4-H Club Pair Will Compete in State Contest at Milwaukee

Earl Gosse and Gerald Mielke of the Crystal Star 4-H club, Seymour, won first place in the district dairy production contest at Green Bay yesterday, according to Miss Irene Skutley, county home demonstration agent.

The team will represent the district in state competition at the state fair in Milwaukee next month. The team is coached by Marvin Krahn, one of the club's leaders. Marinette county placed second in the contest.

Brown county won first place and Manitowoc second in the dairy foods team division. Manitowoc county placed first in the dairy foods individual division with Helen Van Vreede, Kau-Free club, Outagamie county, second. Her subject was "Dressing Up Ice Cream."

Betty and Dolores Peotter of the Crystal Star club competed in the dairy foods team division.

The Count of Paris, current hero of the French royalists, said in one of his periodic manifestos: "God forbid that it takes a great disaster to show France the way back to sanity, but if it does, we must be ready."

The count applied formally to the French government at the start of the war for permission to serve as a soldier, but was refused. Like other men of the direct Orleans line, he is forbidden to set foot on the soil of France or French possessions or protectorates.

Richard T. Miskimen, 29, president, secretary-treasurer and all the vice presidents, calls the new business a "thoroughly diversified personal service."

His prospects, on the kind of fine bond paper ordinarily reserved for wedding invitations, tells just how diversified. Why? Both offers, for a price, to:

Shop, mail Christmas cards, sit up with baby, put the cat out or mow the grass.

Answer the telephone, remind you of a luncheon date, meet a train or hold your place in line outside a crowded moving picture theatre.

Get you a servant, an errand boy, a ticket to a show, a ticket to Oshkosh, publicity, flowers or a drink; and Plan a party or write you a speech.

"We will be happy to do, and will do," the letter sweepingly sums up, "anything for you at any time."

Miskimen, a University of Illinois man and an ex-newspaper reporter, says his friends forced him into business.

"I got tired of doing things for people and not getting paid for it," he explains. He has a one-room office, a full-time stenographer, an errand boy, three unemployed college men and some 20 servants on call.

Miskimen's biggest job was rubbing out a woodpecker that was waking up a suburban neighborhood every daybreak. A man with a shotgun went out three mornings before he killed the bird. The fee was $2.

How does he like his work? "I'm having a riot?" Miskimen chortles.

Delays Action In Code Fight

Judge Graess to Hear Arguments This Month On Injunction Plea

Green Bay. —(P)—Circuit Judge Henry Graess will hear arguments later this month in the state's request for injunctions to restrain 11 Green Bay beauty shops from engaging in what the state trade practice division calls a "reckless and ruinous" price war.

Judge Graess announced the decision yesterday after hearing the plea of Fred M. Wylie, state code practice examiner, for the issuance of injunction orders.

Each side was allowed 10 days to submit affidavits.

Wylie told the judge that three of the eleven shops were leaders in the price war, and that the remainder had indicated they would adhere to code prices if competition permitted.

Wylie charged that rules governing sanitation and hours of work could not be observed by the industry while engaged in a price war, and alleged that customers "are going home with dirty heads, and hair chopped off instead of properly tapered."

Attorneys for the shop owners challenged the statement, declaring no proof had been offered.

Petitions asking injunctions against approximately a dozen barbers, shoe repairers, beauticians and hair cleaners on the grounds they had failed to pay license fees under the code law were dropped when they agreed to deposit the fees with the clerk of the court pending a supreme court decision on the constitutionality of the law setting up the code. Funds now so held by Clerk Leo Ruel amount to $126.

Milwaukee. —(P)—Circuit Judge John C. Kleczka has issued restraining orders forbidding 27 Milwaukee barbers from continuing their businesses after July 1 unless they pay state code license fees.

The orders were handed down yesterday upon the petition of George F. Lange, representing the state trade practice division.

Justice for a Dinner And Also for a Cook

Memphis, Tenn. —(P)—Federal Judge J. D. Martin complimented his host for the "best chicken dinner I ever ate." The negro cook came forward.

"Haven't I seen you before?" the judge asked.

"Yes, sah," he replied, "I jest finished a 90-day sentence."

Helena Turns Out To See Public Bath

Helena, Mont. —(P)—News spread that somebody was "going to get a public bath" on Main and Edwards streets and crowds gathered. It turned out that a crew of workmen were going to clean a bank building.

If the day seems unbearably hot, keep cooler by recalling that in 1935 Wisconsin suffered the fiercest heat wave in state annals, with a July toll of 525 deaths attributed directly to that cause.

Name Delegates To V. F. W. Meet

Scheurle, Wisconsin Commander, Will Head Group From Appleton

A delegation headed by Armin Scheurle, state commander, will represent the Harvey Pierre post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the national encampment at Los Angeles August 25-30. It was announced today following last night's meeting at Eagles hall.

Fred Volkman, post commander, Al Johnlin, and Ferdinand Radtke are the other delegates. Alternates are Fred Frank, Pat Ferguson, and John Pierre.

The post last night heard reports on the state encampment at Sheboygan given by Scheurle, Roy Walker, and Carl Rehfeldt.

The national encampment will open at 7 o'clock Sunday evening, August 25, with memorial services in Hollywood bowl. The first opening session of the posts and their auxiliaries will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Other features of the encampment are a military parade including a spectacular "air raid" of Los Angeles, "pageant of drums," and military ball. Election of national officers will be held Friday, August 30.

Pool Architect and Engineer Up to Board

At a meeting yesterday afternoon the council's swimming pool committee submitted the project to the board of public works, which is to select an architect and engineer and prepare tentative plans. The pool committee is to approve any action of the board before plans are submitted to the council.

Membership Drive Is Planned by Tavernmen

Farley Stays Silent On Third Term Issue

Chicago—(P)—James A. Farley reported today that both he and President Roosevelt "thought it best" to keep the chief executive's views on the third term question "confidential."

The chairman of the Democratic national committee was asked at a press conference what the president said at their parley in Hyde Park, N. Y., last Sunday.

"I won't add anything to the story I told the newspaper men at Hyde Park," Farley replied.

Asked if he had been pledged to secrecy, Farley said:

"I wasn't asked to keep it a secret, but both the president and I thought it best to keep confidential."

the value of our seapower, a power which we do not intend to lose," Alexander told the cheering house.

Running the risk of blowing themselves out of the sea, British seamen took a small boat through the outer defenses of Dakar harbor and dropped depth charges after the French had failed to reply to British conditions, Alexander said.

The airplanes attacked a few minutes later.

The other naval action since the attack at Oran mentioned by Alexander was the raid by British aircraft July 6 on the battleship Dunkerque.

It already had been disclosed that British fliers scored six hits on the damaged, grounded, 26,500-ton French capital ship July 6 and Alexander said the aerial attack would incapacitate her for a long time.

Meanwhile, Britain's defense regulations net enmeshed Brian Bernard Carroll, 31, treasurer of the British Union of Fascists, and Admiral Sir Barry Domville, former director of British naval intelligence, and Lady Domville.

They were arrested last night and Admiral Domville, who retired in 1936, was taken to Brixton prison and his wife to Holloway prison.

Admiral Domville, 62, was chairman of the pro-German organization known as "The Link," dissolution of which was announced some time ago.

1940 Clothes for Awkward Age Are Flattering

BY AMY PORTER
AP Fashion Writer

Maybe you think your seven-year-old daughter is too young to have an ankle-length formal party dress. Maybe you think you'd like to buy her a nice little short white frock—plain, simple, in good taste.

Maybe you'd better think again before you go spending good money. If you are as well trained as most mamas, you won't try to dictate. You'll take the child to the store, name the price she can pay, and let her choose her own party dress. And if she chooses a long formal—well, you wouldn't want her to look different from her crowd would you? It's what they're all wearing.

From age seven on, girls have just as definite taste in clothes as you have. Mostly, it's pretty good taste, too. It's their ambition to look like older high-school or even college girls, and with college-girl fashions as sane as they are, you have little to worry about.

This summer little girls love pinatores—not because they are quaint and childish but because they are just what grown-ups are wearing. They love gabardine shorts and slacks, with beanies to match—not because they're practical costumes for rough play, but because older girls wear them.

Most difficult to please are girls in the "awkward age"—12, 13 and 14 years old. They hate to buy their clothes in the children's department, yet they can't be fitted anywhere else. Smart stores save face for this age group by putting up a partition, or at least a screen, between ten-age clothes and real little-girl fashion.

For "best dressed" inspiration, manufacturers and children themselves look to the screen, where such starlets as Gloria Jean and Virginia Weidler set styles. Teen-agers have outgrown the sweet and simple fashions inspired by Shirley Temple—for that matter Shirley Temple has outgrown them. And for some reason the two little English princesses, Margaret Rose and Elizabeth, no longer have the fashion influence they had a year ago.

SWEET AND PROPER—Mothers won't fuss because their daughters want to look like the little girl in the movies, it means buying such a sweet and proper little dress as the one shown here. It's of white shantung, with red, white and blue touches at neckline and sleeve, and in the shirred waistband. Modeled by Virginia Weidler, child starlet.

Europe and Asia adopt principles of the Monroe doctrine in solving problems of their respective spheres.

Editorial comment in Berlin generally was favorable.

Germans said the president's proposals were not completely understood, but the general impression prevailed that the United States is giving more thought to "the negative aspects" of its Monroe doctrine—meaning that in return for keeping out of the western hemisphere, European powers might expect assurance that the United States would keep out of Europe's affairs.

If the United States draws honorable conclusions (from implications of the Monroe doctrine), not only all Europe but also her English proteges will benefit," said the Boers Zeitung.

"For England would not have dared to start this war nor continue it up to now if she had not felt completely certain of the intercession of the United States with all its means."

The Deutsche Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, which is close to the German foreign office, charged that Britain seeks to gain possession of the French island of Martinique in the West Indies, and speculated whether the United States would consider this an infringement of the Monroe doctrine.

Reports from the Netherlands said nine civilians had been killed by bombs at Sliedrecht when they failed to take shelter during a British air raid.

Purchases House on S. Outagamie Street

Theodore Delrow has purchased a house and part of two lots at 121 S. Outagamie street from Arthur Kurrasch, et al. The real estate transfer has been filed at the office of Stephen M. Peeters, Outagamie county register of deeds. The following transfers also have been filed:

Estate of Mrs. Luella Freiburg to George E. Sande and E. J. Schrage, a lot in the old Third ward, Appleton.

John Cleary to Lloyd Woodworth, part of a lot in the old Fourth ward, Appleton.

of congress and made brief thank-you talks.

Willkie, who had said he would not speak, arose only after the diners had started the campaign shout: "We want Willkie!"

Bid to Democrats

Campaign headquarters, Willkie announced today, will be established in either Chicago or New York. He added that an effort would be made to have the headquarters "convenient" to Martin, thus indicating that New York was the preferred city.

Discussing his own plans Willkie said that he "undoubtedly" would make an effort "to organize independent Democrats" behind his presidential candidacy.

This would be undertaken, he explained, through the already started organization of Willkie-for-president clubs.

In defining Hamilton's new position, Willkie said that he would continue to be compensated with a salary of $25,000 a year and that his job would be "assisting Mr. Martin."

Martin, he said, "is the campaign manager in charge of the campaign."

Walter S. Hallanan of West Virginia announced the sub-committee's action in approving the appointment of Martin was unanimous. He also praised Willkie's "cooperation" in sitting with the group.

No "One-Man Show"

"We feel," Hallanan said, "that in Willkie as president we will not have a one-man show as we have had for the past eight years under the New Deal."

Hallanan announced that Sinclair

Weeks of Massachusetts had been chosen chairman of the executive committee of the national committee, and the following had been named vice chairmen of the national committee:

Samuel C. Pryor, Connecticut; Hallahan, West Virginia; Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, Indiana; and Mrs. Elsie Fitzsimons, Rhode Island.

Re-elected were C. B. Goodspeed, Illinois, as treasurer; Harold W. Mason, Vermont, secretary; and Henry P. Fletcher, Rhode Island, general counsel.

Executive Committee

Named to membership on the executive committee under Weeks were:

J. Russell Sprague, New York; Robert Burroughs, New Hampshire; Daniel E. Pomeroy, New Jersey; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Pennsylvania; David Ingalls, Ohio; Daniel O. Hastings, Delaware; Mrs. Bertha Baur, Illinois; Harrison Spangler, Iowa; Mrs. Horace Sayre, Oklahoma; William Knowland, California; Mrs. Cris Carlson, Minnesota; Ezra Whitla, Idaho; Mrs. Bella Urquhart, Washington, state; Harvey Jewett, South Dakota, and Carroll Reece, Tennessee.

Hallanan described Willkie's meeting with the subcommittee as a "refreshing experience, practically without precedent."

"His cooperation indicated to us not only his desire to work in harmony with the party organization," Hallanan said, "but more importantly it has indicated that his approach to the solution of the nation's grave problems will be conducted on a similar basis, by conference and counsel with every group."

Moreover, Hallanan said, Willkie won the "complete confidence and affection of the committee by his

Three Injured as Two Cars Collide

Three persons were injured when two cars sideswiped at a curve on Highway 47 three miles west of Twelve Corners about 9:30 this morning. Florian Rohloff, 24, Black Creek, was driving south and John Schlitz, 22, 915 E. Franklin street, north when the collision occurred, according to William Glasheen, county traffic patrolman.

Rohloff was bruised about the face. Mrs. August Rohloff, 54, Black Creek, suffered a leg injury. Jeanette Rohloff, 20, Black Creek, was cut about the mouth and a knee.

Advisory Committee

Willkie announced the full advisory committee for his forthcoming campaign as follows:

Stassen, chairman; Martin; Root; David Ingalls, Ohio, former Taft manager; Governor Raymond E. Baldwin, Connecticut; Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, Illinois, who was a Thomas E. Dewey backer; Representative Charles Halleck, Indiana, who nominated Willkie at the convention; Governor Ralph Carr, Colorado; Mrs. Ruth Kohler, Wisconsin; Representative William Ditter, Pennsylvania; Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., Delaware; John E. Jackson, New Orleans; William Stern, North Dakota; E. J. Bennet, Utah; Howard Lawrence, Michigan, a former Arthur H. Vandenberg campaign manager; Kenneth Simpson, New York; Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, Pennsylvania, Roger Straus, New York; Thomas G. Nutter, West Virginia, and William King, Illinois.

Willkie said that Nutter (Charleston) and King (Chicago) were Negroes and would represent their race on the committee.

Museum Will Be Settling for Pioneers' Day

Transportation Will Be Provided; Movies To Highlight Program

Kaukauna — Pioneer day, when Kaukauna people will gather at the sequentennial museum at the Municipal building, will be held tomorrow.

To bring together folks who have spent their lives or lived a long time in Kaukauna, the committee in charge is furnishing free transportation to anyone wishing to visit the museum. All the person has to do is telephone 385, and a car will be sent for him.

In charge will be Thomas J. Nolan, vice chairman of the sequentennial, and Miss Alicemay Whittier, secretary. Movies to be shown at the museum intermittently during the day will highlight the program.

Main purpose of the affair is to give settlers of the city a place to meet and talk over old times, and to be sure that they see the museum display. Old timers will be needed to identify some of the pictures on display there, Nolan said.

Museum Growing
With the addition of two new show cases this week the museum continues to grow and fill up its place in the Municipal building. Notable addition of the last week is a high-wheel bicycle, loaned by Gregory Faust. It brought back memories of old days to Henry Essler, fire chief, who remarked, "There's many a good ride I had on that bike."

New also is a spinning wheel that was rescued from the Chicago fire by the grandmother of William Krueger. There is a casket set that formerly was in the Lawe home. It is loaned by Mrs. Win Green, who received the set from the late Miss Belle Fox.

There is a deck of cards brought here from Holland before the Civil War and a glass dinner bell, loaned by Mrs. Peter Feller. A boot-jack and a heavy iron druggist's mortar were loaned by Herman Konrad.

A special Irish exhibit is the shillalah, once the property of Dennis McCarthy, head of the large McCarthy relationship in this vicinity. The shillalah is loaned by Mrs. Anna Glenn. There is an old map of Ireland, loaned by Henry McDonald.

A series of christening gowns through four generations of the Vaneehoven-Doering — Hurkman family has been loaned by Mrs. Charles Vaneehoven. Most recent is the 1940 creation, used for John Joseph Eslein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eslein. Oldest and longest is the one from 1864, which belonged to Mrs. Anna Hurkman Doering. In between are those of Mrs. Charles Vaneehoven and of Mrs. Valeria Vaneehoven Ahlsgen.

No-Hitter Is Spoiled In Game's Last Inning

Kaukauna — The Holy Name society softball team of St. Mary's church defeated Van's Oils at Little Chute, 7 to 2, in a game pitched by Sherman Powers' 3-hit pitched Sunday morning. Powers struck out 15 batters and was on the way to a no-hitter game up to the last inning, when Vans connected for three singles after two men were out.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

EXPOSITION ENTERTAINERS — Buck Crosby and his Red River Rangers will sing here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday when the Great London Trainway exposition shows at the Chicago and North western depot. A feature of the exposition will be a 68-ton sea monster.

Sea Monster Will Be Feature Exhibit of London Exposition

Exhibits including a 69-ton sea monster will be shown by the Great London Trainway exposition on a specially constructed railroad car at the Chicago and Northwestern depot Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The sea monster, "Colossus," is over 55 feet long.

Accompanying the exhibits are some veterans in the whaling business, including Captain Mike Dolan, who has spent the last 35 years sailing. Dolan will lecture.

Another feature of the exhibits is Prof. John Lynch and his troupe of performing fleas. Stunts performed by these tiny fleas include kicking footballs, riding tiny bicycles, pushing little carts, fan dancers and wire walkers. Buck Crosby and his Red River Rangers will sing. Another exhibit is of live penguins. The exhibition will be open daily from noon to 11 p. m.

Drill Team Will Perform at Rally for Benefit Association
Kaukauna — Women's Benefit association will gather at Hotel Kaukauna tomorrow for a 6:30 dinner and rally. The drill team will perform at the rally. Arrangements were changed yesterday from original plans which provided that the rally would be held at the high school gymnasium.

Plans were made at a meeting last week, when Mrs. Gertrude Voss of Milwaukee was present to help organize the affair. To make plans for the sequentennial banquet, Aug. 12, band mothers met yesterday afternoon at the sequentennial office.

Women's Foreign Missionary society of Brokaw Memorial Methodist church will hold its annual picnic at the Grignon tomorrow afternoon. Sacred Heart Court No. 556, Women's Catholic Order of Foresters will gather for a picnic at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at LaFollette park.

Klubs to Meet Bleser Squad

Manitowoc Team to Invade Kaukauna for Contest Under Lights

Kaukauna — Kaukauna Klub softball team will meet one of its toughest rivals of the season tomorrow night when it clashes with the Bleser Gold Coast team of Manitowoc at 8:15 under the lights at the Kaukauna park.

Leading the major league in Manitowoc, the Gold Coasters furnish a group of top ranking softball stars, seven of whom have been named on the Manitowoc city all-star team. The club has outscored rivals this year 54 and 34 and has a team batting average of .317.

Leading hitter on the club is Scoop Hartwig, catcher, who is pounding the ball at a .429 clip. Two pitchers will be on hand. They are Feeny Ziarnik, ace of the staff, who for the last seven years has never won less than 25 games. Donnie Wolfgram is a youngster just breaking in, but this season he has defeated the Negro Ghosts, barnstorming colored stars.

Adolph "Big Mitts" Gorychka, whom many valley basketball fans remember from his days on the strong Marquette team of 1934, will be playing. He has hit .589 in relief roles this summer. Shorty Galbraith of the valley league plays third base.

Thilmany Plant Leads in Safety

Kaukauna — Thilmany Pulp and Paper company upper mill ranked first in safety in a group of eight mills composed of converting plants during 1939, a report by the National Safety council for the calendar year reveals.

Compared with an average of 11.63 for the group, Thilmany's had a frequency rate of 1.87. Their severity rate was .02, compared with an average of .95 for the group.

The company enjoyed the longest no-accident period in its history during 1939 when the upper mill worked 205 consecutive days without having a disabling injury to any of its men. An average of 530 employees were engaged in work there during that time.

Only two lost time accidents occurred at Thilmany's in the period for a time loss of 21 days.

The eight mills included in the report are those listed as "not otherwise classified." They comprise the large units of the industry.

Roosevelt Has Worked Into An Uncomfortable Situation

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington — I don't know what President Roosevelt is going to do about a third term. All that is clear is that he has worked himself into a very hot and uncomfortable spot because he failed to take the country into his confidence earlier regarding his intentions. He has come quite close to outsmarting himself.

Months ago President Roosevelt could have done himself and the country a favor by stating his position. It would not have undermined his strength in congress, or in the Democratic convention—which couldn't possibly nominate anyone of whom Mr. Roosevelt disapproved. It would not have had the slightest effect on the European situation.

Had Mr. Roosevelt made his position clear, he would not have left his party in its present pitiable position where it is helpless except to wait for his orders at the Chicago convention. Mr. Roosevelt would not have left himself in such an equivocal position that his best-intentioned efforts in dealing with the war situation have been subjected to political suspicion as being linked with third-term ambitions.

To refuse to run now would create utter confusion and panic in the Democratic party. All possible candidates for the nomination have been either smacked down or discouraged, or have just been allowed to die on the vine. Any other candidate except Roosevelt would appear now as a weak second choice. And Mr. Roosevelt himself would be in the position of having suddenly taken a run-out powder after Willkie, a potentially strong opponent, was unexpectedly nominated by the Republicans.

Yet if Mr. Roosevelt runs he will be subjected to the most embarrassing attack.

He is whipping up the totalitarian issue. National Chairman Farley and Speaker Bankhead assailed the Republican nomination of Willkie as suggesting something foreign to the American way of life. At Hyde park, Mr. Roosevelt said there was some fascist sympathy in this country. He deplored the impatience that is sometimes expressed with the slower methods of democracy and even spoke with tolerance of the checks and balances and the long delays in the courts. It is certainly a different tune from the one we had during the supreme court fight.

The old horse-and-buggy days look mighty good to Mr. Roosevelt now, and apparently he is all set to put on a full-dress defense of democracy, wars and all.

Could Speak Better As Hyde Park Squire
That is all right. But it is going to be quite an act to do that while at the same time running for a third term, which is sure enough something new in American government. While Mr. Roosevelt, running for an unprecedented third term, is pleading for the American way of life and casting suspicion that the Republicans are out to scuttle it, he will in turn be charged with making the boldest move on record to change an American practice which has come to have almost the sanction of a constitutional amendment.

He could make a much more effective defense of the American way of life speaking as one who had renounced the opportunity to take another nomination and as one about to resume private life as the squire of Hyde Park.

However, no matter what occurs at Chicago, and no matter what form the arguments take during the campaign, the essential point that the rest of us may well keep in mind is that the first requirement of democracy is that the people retain their right to change their officials.

So long as that power, the power of the electorate, is maintained against direct and indirect encroachment, American democracy cannot be in any serious danger. Mechanical forms are of secondary importance. The nation's liberties are likely to be safe if the voters are able to change presidents and senators and representatives.

Garden Club Holds Its Annual Outing
Waupaca — The Waupaca Garden club held its annual picnic Monday at Whispering Pines, Mar. Lake. A pot luck luncheon was served at 1 o'clock and the remainder of the afternoon given to discussion of the summer flower show. Arrangements of the show are in the hands of Mrs. V. O. Parrish.

BREAD BOX MAGIC

A well managed bread box is as useful to the cook as a top hat to a magician. But the tricks the cook conjures out of the bread box have several advantages over the top hat variety. They delight the palate as well as the eye. And they can be performed as smoothly by the amateur as by the most experienced cook.

Thin slices of bread, slowly dried in a moderate oven and lightly toasted, may be served as Melba toast. Thicker slices, cut in cubes, may be browned in the oven or fried in deep fat, and used in place of crackers with soup.

The bread box magician doesn't slight the dessert course. Old-fashioned bread pudding is as modern as tomorrow, and as popular as ever. For variety, simplicity and delectable goodness, try this lemon soufflé. If you've accumulated left-over and stale bread, place it in the oven to thoroughly dry. Then set up the food chopper and grind reducing all the scraps to a huge bowl of uniform crumbs. These may be stored in glass jars for several days. There's an occasion to try the pecanettes. They're par excellence.

Raisin Bread Pudding
3 slices bread 1/2 inch thick
4 eggs
3 tablespoons sugar
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup raisins

Cut bread into cubes or strips and place in buttered baking dish. Beat slightly two whole eggs and two yolks (save two whites for meringue). Add sugar, milk, vanilla, cinnamon, nutmeg and raisins. Blend well and pour over bread. Set dish in pan of cold water and bake in a moderate oven 50 degrees F. until custard is set, about 1 1/2 hours. Fifteen minutes before custard has finished baking spread meringue over custard and allow meringue to brown.

Meringue
2 egg whites
4 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Beat egg whites until stiff, add sugar gradually, beating between each addition of sugar, and vanilla and spread on pudding.

Lemon Soufflé
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 cup sugar
1 cup butter
1 lemon, juice and rind
4 eggs

1 cup milk
Mix bread, sugar and juice and grated rind of lemon together. Add melted butter. Beat egg yolks with milk. Pour over bread mixture. Mold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour into buttered baking dish. Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with whipped cream.

Pecanettes
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped pecans
1 cup very fine dry bread crumbs

Beat eggs, add sugar and vanilla and mix well. Add bread crumbs and chopped nuts. Drop by teaspoonsful on a well greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees F. for 15 minutes, till lightly browned. Remove from baking sheet immediately while still hot. Makes 36 cookies two inches in diameter.

My Neighbor Says—
Fruit butters scorch easily because they are so thick. Placing the container on an asbestos mat helps prevent scorching. The butter should be cooked rapidly so it will keep its bright color. Use a long-handled wooden spoon, of the slotted type, for stirring. Because boiling butter bubbles a great deal, it's safer to wrap your stirring arm in a dish cloth to avoid burns.

Clippings from grass may be left on the lawn. They serve as a mulch and at the same time fertilize the soil as they decay.

Player May Seal His Own Fate

A conservative estimate of the number of contracts lost annually by declarers blocking themselves early in the play will be in the neighborhood of 50,000. Today's hand merely augments that total by one.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 spade Pass 2 clubs Pass
2 spades Pass 3 spades Pass
4 spades Pass 4 spades Pass
South's second bid might well have been two no trump rather than two spades. The latter was too weak a rebid for the three and one-half-plus honor tricks South held. A final contract of three no trump would have been foolproof against West's normal opening of a diamond.

However, the actual four spade contract also should have been fulfilled. Against this West selected a low heart for his opening lead. Dummy ducked and East's nine forced the ace. To get the club suit established as soon as possible declarer entered dummy with a heart to the king and led the club jack thru East. The latter correctly refused to cover and declarer playing low, West won with the king. The heart queen was returned and it was here that declarer made his fatal error. Without giving the matter the slightest thought, he ruffed with the deuce of trumps. His next move was to drive out the spade ace, preparatory to reentering dummy for another club play. But now when the spade king was laid down East was not accommodating—he held up the ace.

This put declarer in quite a dilemma. Reduced to the Q-J-5 of trumps, he found that it would be quite a feat to enter dummy with a trump. Actually, he led the five spot to the nine. East, knowing that declarer now was down to the Q-J black, did not mind taking this trick, and he immediately attacked dummy's one remaining entry, the diamond ace. Declarer desperately attempted to protect that entry by going up with the diamond queen, hoping that East had led from the king, but his hope was in vain. West covered the queen. As it happened, declarer could still have wriggled out of trouble and fulfilled the contract if he had permitted West to hold this trick.

West could have made no better return than a diamond. Dummy's ace would have won and now a good guess in the club suit, leading the ten spot thru, would have fixed the defenders. The fall of West's nine would have saved declarer from another club loser and he also could have ruffed his remaining diamond. But, having boxed himself up in the previous play, declarer was in no condition to analyze the hand calmly. He captured West's diamond king with dummy's ace and led another club. Now, since it would do him no good to find the guarded queen in the East hand, he led a low club, hoping the queen would fall on the ace. When it did not, he was thru. He returned a diamond in the forlorn hope of being allowed to ruff his last diamond, but this was not to be. East won the trick and promptly returned a spade.

Declarer won, of course, but finally had to concede another diamond and another club trick. Thus, instead of fulfilling the contract and earning game and rubber for his own side, he had to chuck up 200 to the opponents' credit.

Note to Brides

The bride-to-be has quite a few duties connected with her entertaining. She should write or telephone before the wedding—to each friend who has contributed to showers for her. Acknowledgment of wedding gifts can be put off, of course, until the return from the honeymoon, but then it should be taken care of promptly.

along and if necessary stand by him until he is able to go on his own interest. Playing the game is an essential part of his education.

Beauty and You

NOTE OF FRESHNESS—Billie Burke looks very cool and beguiling in her crisp white blouse, washable gloves and pert sailor. A white china lily corsage adds another note of freshness.

Torrid days make the question of "What to wear?" very difficult, especially if we are city folk and must dress for business hours.

Certainly the darker, heavier clothes of winter are not inviting, or the heavy costume jewelry with which we like to deck ourselves during cooler weather. We yearn for crisp-looking, cool dresses and hats which are light enough yet large enough to shield us from the sun.

Thanks to the more progressive American designers we are turning to cool, fresh cotton for summer wear, even to our undies. Cotton stands tubing better than any other fabric and it resists heat. But our problem (we the business women) is to find suitable tailored cotton clothes for day wear. No boss likes his girls to come to the office or factory dressed as if they were going to a garden party or the beach. He wants them to look cool, yes, but he also wants them appropriately tailored and wearing accessories which are not the musical comedy variety.

A Few Suggestions
Lighter colors look cooler, but if you must wear the darker shades brighten them with crisp touches of white. White collars and cuffs, white gloves, white hats. Unless you live in a small town don't wear white shoes to business. Reserve those for your play hours. Darker shoes are in better taste during the summer in the city.

Make it a habit to put on fresh undies every single morning, and of course, fresh hose.

Regarding hose. The lighter shades are more appropriate for hot days, and you must always wear hose if you go to a job. Nude legs during working hours are the height of bad judgment even though yours may be tanned nicely. Keep your legs free of superfluous hair, and also keep your lower arms free of superfluous hair if you wear shorter sleeves a good part of the time. Or bleach the hair if it is not thick and dark.

When you wear cotton suits and dresses, never wear a mottled one. It will take time, or cost money to keep them immaculately clean and well pressed, but you should do it. A wrinkled, limp cotton dress is anything but cool looking and it certainly doesn't make you attractive!

Again a word about shields for underarms and across the back. If you perspire freely in those areas. Shields are infinitely necessary for your prints and other silk dresses, as it is tightly shocking to see a nicely attired girl with her dress moist across the back and wet under her arms. Change and wash your shields whenever necessary. There is a model which pins in and saves you the time of tacking with needle and thread.

Your Make-Up

Many of you will find that most make-up foundations melt on your skin and make it look too hot and moist. Experiment by using a lubricating cream at night, and no foundation during the day. Simply powder your skin lightly and wear a bright lipstick shade. But always wash off the tired powder before putting on fresh. Some beauty authorities will not agree with this but I have found that the less you put on your skin during the torrid days the cooler, and fresher it looks. But see for yourself.

Keep after your hips. My reducing leaflet is still available. Write for it care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope if you request the exercises.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

In an emergency, we tend to stiffen and shove our feet forward against the floorboard of the automobile. Our right foot, therefore, has to be consciously inhibited from following this natural tendency, or it would shove the foot throttle down. Then we must flex the leg, pull the foot backward, to the left, and finally push it forward upon the brake. This wasted time and unneeded psychology needlessly kills thousands of human beings each year. Be sure to study today's Case Record.

CASE R-114: Paul J., aged 35, called to invite me to address the National Safety Council's Annual Banquet.

"What improvements would you recommend, Dr. Crane, in order to lower our traffic toll?" he inquired.

"We have been working diligently, and with pretty good results, to save human lives, but there is still plenty of room for improvement."

DIAGNOSIS:

A few years ago I mentioned one of the most obvious causes of automobile accidents, when I cited the antiquated arrangement of the foot pedals on the floor board.

We drive our cars without having either foot upon a brake pedal! Thus, if a child runs out from behind a parked car, or dashes into the street after his ball, we may fully perceive the danger and quickly flash a signal to our feet, but they cannot immediately apply the brake even after they receive that impulse from the brain, for they aren't in contact with the brake pedal.

We waste a minimum of at least one-half a second, therefore, which may mean the difference between killing the child or saving his life.

What I Second Means

If you think this 1/2-second is trivial, just remember that it stands for approximately 30 feet traveled when we are driving at only 40 miles per hour.

Those 30 feet may be priceless, especially if they result in our stopping short of a human being. When your car registers 40 miles per hour on the speedometer, you can quickly determine your approximate speed in feet per second by the simple method of multiplying by 1 1/2. This is a quick plan for instantly computing the distance covered per second. At 40 m. p. h., therefore, we are traveling approximately 60 feet per second.

At 20 m. p. h., it means about 30 feet per second. At 60 m. p. h., it equals approximately 90 feet per second.

Now please observe what would happen if the automobile manufacturers and engineers used a little more horse sense and arranged the pedals so one foot would always be on the brake.

At a speed of 40 m. p. h., which means 60 feet per second, we could save 1/2-second, or 30 feet. This would mean, in effect, reducing the present 60 feet per second to only 30 feet per second, which is the speed when our speedometer reads but 20 miles per hour.

Think of it! At 40 m. p. h. with the new brake pedal arrangement, our cars would approximate only 20 m. p. h. hazards. This is the greatest single improvement that could be made in lowering our terrific auto death rate.

Horse Sense Versus Horsepower
Some engineers have written to me claiming it is impossible to do what I say, alleging that the present arrangement "has to be that way." That same faulty argument was used on Columbus when he challenged the belief that the world was flat.

Robert Fulton heard it, too, when his neighbors mocked at his plans for the steamboat. The present dangerous arrangement of automobile pedals can easily be remedied and at slight expense.

I recently drove an automobile through Chicago boulevards, equipped with a foot plate that served both as throttle and brake. It teetered back and forth across a fulcrum, set far forward.

Pressing with the toe fed gasoline into the carburetor. Pressing with the heel, applied the brake. It worked beautifully, and is psychologically sound as well as practically sound from the engineering angle. And isn't it good horse sense?

WEDDING INVITATION

When any set form falls short of the purposes for which it was originally intended, then common sense naturally directs that it be modified or perhaps even replaced by something else more fitting to the momentary need. An example of this occasion is given in this question:

"Is it always necessary to answer a formally worded and engraved wedding invitation by writing an answer in the same third person form? I have just received a wedding invitation from a bride-to-be who was one of my dearest friends, but I haven't seen her for years, as I now live across the continent. I cannot go to the wedding and am wondering if in this case the formally worded reply may be replaced by a personal note to the bride. My question is in regard to not upsetting the list of the wedding secretary."

But of course! Write a personal note to the bride! I can't imagine that you could think of doing anything else. If you choose to be over-ermeticulous you may send a third person regret to her parents in addition to the letter to the bride. But I doubt very much if the bride's family will think it necessary, since the bride can certainly give your name, and the names of any other persons who happen also to write to her personally, to the secretary who may want to check the lists. But in preparing for a very big reception as suggested by your mention of a "wedding secretary," a few names not accurately recorded would make little difference.

Birth Announcements
Dear Mrs. Post: Should birth announcements carry the full name of the baby, including the family name too?

Answer: The announcement includes the baby's given name, but not usually the family name.

A Big Engagement Party
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it in good taste to invite almost a hundred people to a party at which a daughter's engagement is to be announced? Isn't it better to have this party just for intimate friends and relatives?

Answer: There is nothing unusual in giving a big party, but whether big or little, it is preferably limited to relatives and intimate friends. In other words, a big party should mean that the engaged pair have very big families or hosts of intimate friends.

Shaking Hands With Gloves On
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct for a woman to shake hands with her gloves on if the other woman is not wearing them?

Answer: Yes. It is sometimes required that a lady put her glove on to shake hands but never required that she take it off unless it is a riding or gardening or golf glove!

Nor does the boy get off without settling his score for his wrongdoing. For if he doesn't marry the girl he is a heel, despised by all decent women; and if he does marry his mistress he has a wife who is a distinct social and business handicap to him.

So, boys and girls, think long and carefully and count the cost before you throw your caps over the windmill.

Don't Interfere After Son's Marriage
Dear Miss Dix—We have a son 29 years old. Has always been very shy, mild and timid. Would never express or assert himself. We often wished he would marry some-nice girl, but he always said he couldn't afford it.

About three months ago he suddenly married a school teacher four years older than he is. She is not the kind of person we would have chosen for his wife, but we made the best of the situation and were glad if he was happy. But she seems to have taken the most unaccountable dislike to us, though we have tried very hard to be friendly with her. She will not come to our house even for dinner and refuses to let him come.

I telephoned him the other day that I wanted to see him about a business matter and he said he couldn't come until he asked his wife. He waits on her hand and foot and seems so cowed and humble that it is pitiful. I am a peaceful woman and I want no in-law trouble, but I would like to see my son once in a while.

I want my son to be a good husband, but I don't want him to be a slave as he is now, for she makes him do all the housework in addition to his job. What shall I do? Shall I have a talk with him, or her, or both?

MRS. G. M.

Answer: Don't have a talk with either one of them. It will do no possible good and only give your daughter-in-law some tangible justification for her conduct, because she can accuse you of interfering.

Nobody can defend a man from his wife, least of all can his mother do so. If a man has not enough courage and backbone to stand up for his own rights and force his wife to treat him with respect, it is simply because he is too weak and cowardly to resist tyranny.

Sometimes even the most spiritless slaves do summon up enough spunk to revolt and flee from their owners. Or perhaps the female dictator your son marries may relent when she sees that you are not trying to usurp her powers, and will let him speak to his family again.

But something with boiling oil in it should be done to a daughter-in-law like yours.

Do Not Interfere After Son's Marriage, Advice

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—It is the old story. A boy of 19 and a girl of 18 who are madly in love with each other but cannot marry because he has his mother to support. We can see nothing but years of waiting ahead of us and are debating whether we shall take our happiness as we find it and live together without benefit of clergy, or not. Do you think we will ever regret it if we do? UNDECIDED.

Answer:

I think you will always regret it if you do because, no matter how your little romance under the rose turns out, you will have smeared your love. You will have degraded and dragged into the dust what should be the most sacred and beautiful relationship on earth. Always on your conscience will be the knowledge that you have broken the law of God and man; always there will be a shameful secret in your background that you will dread your children discovering. And you will wish above everything on earth that you had the integrity of character and the strength to resist temptation and controlled yourselves until you could have married honorably and openly in the sight of all men. For, you see, marriage should not be just a legalized liaison. It should be the beginning of a new life. It should be the coming together of a man and a woman with pure hearts and clean hands and with an unsullied love, not one that has been dragged through the dirt of a sordid, hole-and-corner, hidden affair.

Their wedding should be the most thrilling and solemn moment of every bride's and bridegroom's life. But it becomes a mere formality, without beauty or spiritual meaning, when a man and woman who have been living together marry merely for the sake of regulating their position under the law.

For a mature man and woman whose tastes and habits are formed and who know their own minds to enter into a liaison is a dangerous enough experiment, because love nests are the most fragile and flimsy and most easily destroyed structures ever erected by the folly of man. But for a boy and girl still in their teens, with children's instability of desire and purpose, to risk their all in such a venture, is sheer madness and suicide.

Under the best circumstances, with the consent of their parents, with the backing of society, with church and bell and candles to sanctify the union, the marriage of a boy and girl too young to realize the responsibilities of marriage and to bear its burdens, is a hazardous thing.

All about us we see the wrecks of the homes of young couples whose marriages were destroyed not by any crime that either committed, but just because they outgrew their childish fancies for each other.

So if legalized love cannot stand the gaff, how can illicit love endure when it is put to the test of the uncertainty of each having no hold on the other, of changing tastes, of a guilty conscience, and the continual dread of discovery?

Also, there is a practical side of the question, because stolen love isn't something that you get for nothing. It is the highest commodity in the world.

A girl has to pay for it with her good name, if she is discovered. She has to pay for it with a broken heart, if her lover deserts her, as he generally does. She has to pay for it with the lack of her husband's respect, if he marries her, because he never trusts her. And if she and the boy lover live of each other and part, few other men care to marry her because of that black page in her past.

Nor does the boy get off without settling his score for his wrongdoing. For if he doesn't marry the girl he is a heel, despised by all decent women; and if he does marry his mistress he has a wife who is a distinct social and business handicap to him.

So, boys and girls, think long and carefully and count the cost before you throw your caps over the windmill.

Important for Child to Observe Rules of Game

BY ANGELO PATRI

Playing games according to the rules is one of the important means of character training that school and home and community can readily offer the children. The rules are essential. No rules should mean no games. Some children find it hard to understand that. Some cry when ruled against; some quit. Some try to argue it out. In the end they must take the ruling or be counted out.

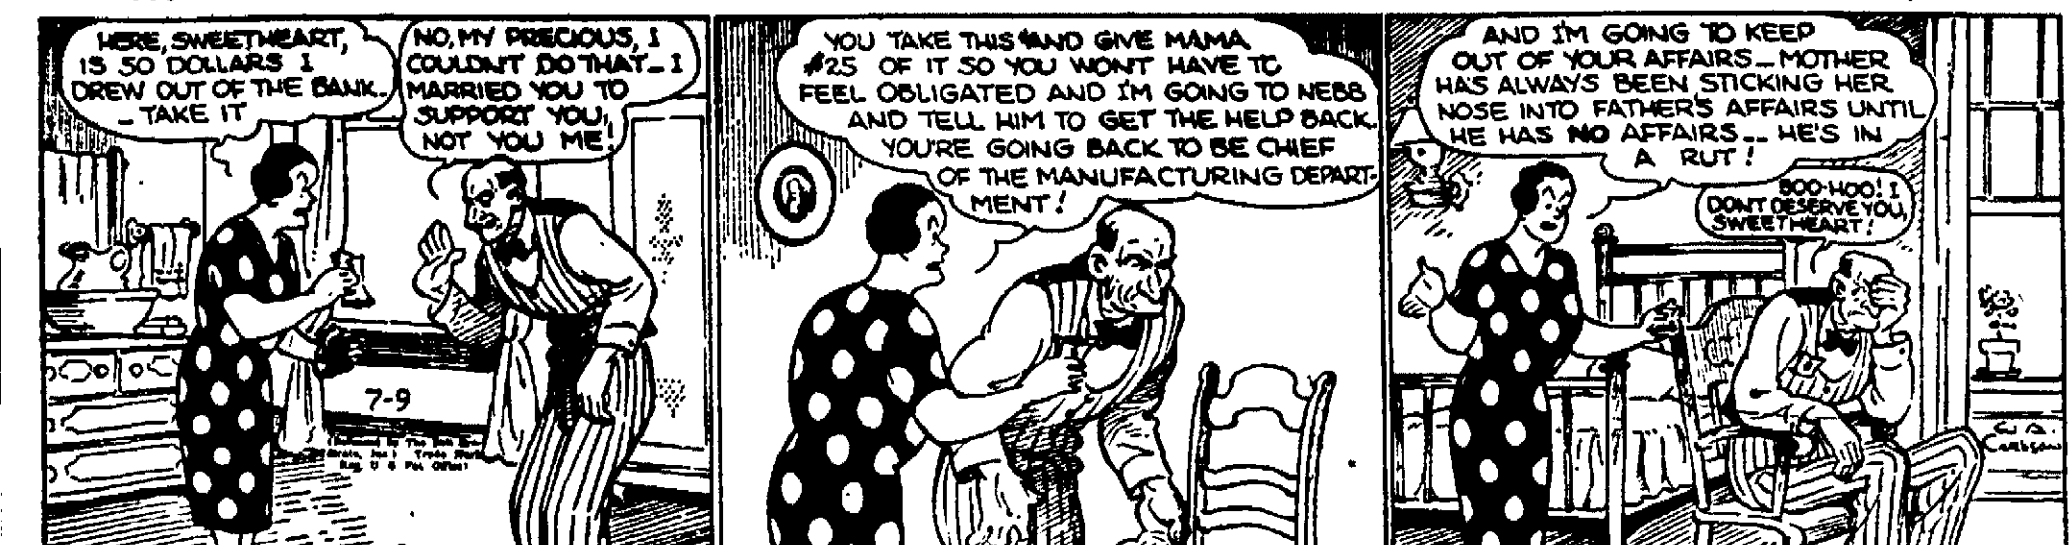

This discipline of the game is more effective on the character of the children than the usual discipline of home and classroom, because

JOAN OF ARC

II—More About Joan of Arc

Joan of Arc was the daughter of a man named Jacob d'Arc, or Jacob of Arc. In her girlhood she was known by her family and friends as Jeanne or Jeannette. To this day, she often is spoken of as "Jeanne d'Arc," pronounced "zhon dark." The name "Joan of Arc" is more common in this country, however.

After hearing a voice from the clouds, as she thought, Joan had many visits with angels and saints. She related that she had seen hundreds of them, and had held long talks with Saint Margaret, Saint Catherine and the Archangel Michael.

Most persons of today would say she must have been mistaken, but whatever we may think about that, this fact stands out: She believed she had such talks, and her belief led her to do things which gave her a place in history.

The "voices" told her to go forth and save France, and we must look back to see what reason there was for such action. When the Norman duke, William the Conqueror, won the English throne, he still kept power over Normandy, a part of France.

Later English kings, who were descended from William, ruled Normandy, and increased their power in France. More than once, a king married a French princess or daughter of a noble; in that way English kings obtained lands to add to Normandy.

There was fighting in France against such changes, and the French were divided as to which side was right. In the year 1420, when Joan was 8 years old, the fighting was ended for a time by the Treaty of Troyes. This treaty brought a plan for the English king, Henry V, to marry a French princess and then become the ruler of both France and England.

The marriage took place, but Henry died two years later, leaving only an infant son as his heir. There was a dispute as to whether this infant or a 19-year-old French prince should be named king of France.

In the province of Burgundy, the leaders were in favor of the infant, English prince. Many other Frenchmen took the side of the French prince, who was named Charles and who was called "the Dauphin," a title given to the eldest son of a French king. Fighting broke out to settle this point, and Joan's "voices" told her to go forth to help the Dauphin.

At the age of 16, she left her home to visit an officer of the government at a town not far distant. She hoped he would help her to obtain a meeting with the Dauphin.

FAREWELL TO ST. MARY'S—The Rev. Lambert Scanlan, assistant pastor of St. Mary church for the last 5½ years, was honored at a farewell party by the members of the parish last night on the church lawn, as today he left to begin his new duties as assistant to the Rev. Henry Head, director of the Green Bay Apostolate. Father Head is shown at the extreme left, while shaking hands with Father Scanlan is F. X. Bachmann, treasurer of the church. Next is Mrs. Peter Jones, president of Christian Mothers society; Mrs. A. W. Liese, vice president; R. P. Beelen, church secretary; and the Rev. William H. Grace, pastor of St. Mary church. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Fr. Scanlan In Farewell

Nearly 500 persons gathered to bid farewell to the Rev. Lambert Scanlan, assistant pastor at St. Mary church who has been appointed assistant to the Rev. Henry Head, diocesan director of the Green Bay Apostolate, at an informal reception last night on the church lawn. During the evening Father Scanlan was presented with a purse on behalf of the congregation and another from Christian Mothers society, and with a traveling bag from Catholic Order of Foresters. The Rev. William H. Grace, pastor, made the presentations. Father Scanlan responded briefly, expressing his thanks to the members of the parish and friends.

Christian Mothers society served refreshments at the reception and assisting with other arrangements were members of the Holy Name society.

Father Scanlan left this morning for Green Bay to begin his new duties. He will be succeeded at St. Mary church by the Rev. Cyril Kabat, formerly of Stevens Point.

Fr. Anscar to Speak At Park Wednesday

$34,000 Voted At School Meet

Levy at Kimberly Is $1,000 Less Than It Was for Last Term

Kimberly — A tax levy of $34,000 recommended by the auditing committee, was voted for the ensuing year at the annual meeting of School District No. 6 at the high school assembly room last night. The levy is $1,000 less than that of last year. J. T. Doerfler, clerk, explained that the decrease is due to reduced expenditures this year. Last year there were such items as a stoker for the school and approximately forty high school band uniforms.

Improvements for this year will include the painting of corridors and the laying of a new floor in one of the class rooms. The clerk read a report from J. R. Gerrits, principal, who is attending summer school at Washington, which stated that if there should be a larger enrollment of 5-year-old children in the kindergarten this fall, it would be necessary to eliminate some of the younger children.

The total enrollment for this fall will be more than 500. There will be about 275 in high school, 200 in the grades and over 30 in day vocational school. The voters again adopted a nine-month school year as in previous years. Financial statements on the records of the clerk and treasurer by E. A. Detman, Appleton, were approved. Mr. Detman will again audit the books the coming year. J. Vaanden Boogaard, I. C. Clark and John Busch were named to the auditing committee.

C. J. Fieweger was reelected director of the school board for three years. Salaries for the district officers were again fixed as follows: Clerk, $125; director, $50; and treasurer, $50. The school board was given the authority to borrow in case of emergency.

Tuition for high school students will be $92.39 compared to $72 in previous years.

Heavy Season at Hilbert Canning Company This Year

Hilbert — The Hilbert canning factory, which opened last week, is working at top speed, employing about 135 persons including 42 women. The yield this year is exceptionally heavy, averaging about 3,000 pounds per acre. The pack last week was 20,000 cans. The company has a 600-acre contract.

Howard Maltby and son Robert and Miss Helen Maltby of Omana, Neb., arrived in this vicinity last week and are visiting at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Pauline Maltby, route 2, Hilbert.

Miss Jeanette Maltby of Spokane, Wash., is spending her summer vacation at the home of her mother Mrs. Pauline Maltby, route 2, Hilbert. Miss Maltby has taught school at Spokane for many years.

Members of the American Legion auxiliary of Stockbridge will have their annual picnic Tuesday afternoon at Riverside park, Neenah. A pot luck supper will be served.

Members of Peace Reform church of Potter will sponsor an ice cream social Friday evening at the church. Serving will begin at 5:30. There also will be special music.

Miss Lillian Fritz, home economics teacher at Brillion High school, will conduct a series of 15 lessons, at the Potter Public school, on interior decoration under the title "Is There Beauty in Your Home?" beginning at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. All unmarried girls, either eighth grade or high school graduates, may attend. No fees will be charged.

Introducing Your Mailman

Do you know the mailman on your route? Every day, rain or shine, in summer and in winter, he stops at your home, providing a service that has grown to be essential as electric lights or the telephone. But few of the mailmen's "customers" know his name, or where he lives or what manner of man he is. The Post-Crescent is introducing the carriers to their public so that readers may know the men who serve them so faithfully.

Suggests Study of Unknown Flowers for July Field Trip

BY CLARA HUSSONG

"Some plants are remembered by us because of the beauty of their flower or leaf, others we know well because they are weeds which we try to eradicate. There are a number of plants which are not showy enough to be generally noticed or to be depicted in wild-flower books. Still not weeds enough in habit to call attention to their growth. During July try to find a number of these forgotten plants and learn their names."

This was the suggestion for this month's field trip given in the outline presented at the beginning of the year. Even if you are an old-timer in wildflower study you can learn to know the names of new species by looking for inconspicuous plants growing in the shade of their better known companions.

Watch Small Area

The best way to do this is to pick a certain area and notice every plant which grows there from early spring until autumn. A stretch of roadside, a vacant lot, the edge of a wood or a pasture are good places to look for these easily overlooked plants. Choose a spot close to home so that you can visit it often and regularly. Sometimes the spots which look least favorable are the ones which turn out to be the best for this type of flower study.

Last summer in the vacant lot near our home, whose plant life I've described often in this column, I found a plant I couldn't name. It's bright yellow blossoms grew at the top of slender, little-branched stem. Long slender leaves grew opposite each other in pairs and the plants varied in height from four to 12 inches.

Typical plants of this moist sandy lot are wild iris, violets, willow, marsh grass, bottle gentians, meadowweet and the orchid, ladies' tresses. The formation of the flower suggested the figwort family and in looking through Homer D. House's "Wild Flowers" (Macmillan) I found the picture of one of the figworts which most nearly resembled it, the golden hedge hyssop, or goldenpert.

Plant is Parasite
Fassett's "Spring Flora of Wisconsin," published by the University of Wisconsin, lists only one hyssop, the marsh variety. This small volume is a manual of plants growing without cultivation and flowering before June 15. No illustration was given for the marsh hyssop but the brief description of the plant fits the flower I found so it is probably the one. Neither Fassett nor House mentions that in late summer the leaves of the plant begin to turn a bright rose color.

Another neglected plant is the bastard toadflax. I mentioned it recently and I had several questions about it because of its curious name. It is not related to the "butter-and-eggs" or wild snapdragon toadflax but is a member of the sandwort family. It is a small leafy plant bearing a panicle of white flowers and is most often found in dry sandy soil, but occasionally descends to wet boggy spots.

Its curious name was given it because it is a parasite, its rootstock fastened to the roots of other plants by means of long slender suckers. A plant growing on and deriving nourishment from another living plant or animal is a parasite, while one living on dead plant or animal matter is a saprophyte. The ghost of the woods, Indian pipe and the orchid coral root belong to the latter class of "spongers."

False Violet Plant
In dry woods, thickets and open fields you can find wood betony or "lousewort." "Beefsteak plant" is another name given to it because of its variously colored blossoms, yellow, pink, orange or scarlet. In early spring when its rosette of much-divided leaves appear you may mistake it for a coarse fern.

A much daintier plant is the calibarda, an inhabitant of rich woods. It is about the size of a violet plant and its nickname of "false violet" refers to its violet-like leaves, which however, are somewhat rounder and more woolly than those of our common violets. "Dewdrop" is another name given it, probably for its dainty white flower. It is one of our long-blooming species, beginning to blossom in June and continuing until fall. I have often found it in bloom at the time when leaves were turning red.

There are dozens of other little known plants you may know by name or sight and it is as much fun becoming familiar with them as it is with the more popular kinds. Running across one which "stumps" you is not discouraging to the enthusiastic flower lover and discovering its name is an en-

What's New at the Library

A posthumous volume by G. K. Chesterton entitled "The End of the Armistice" is proving that the writer who had kept his eyes steady on the Nazi movement from 1933 when Hitler came into power, foresaw everything even to the agreement of Germany and Russia to divide Poland. Chesterton, who died in 1936, wrote about one aspect or another of the danger of Prussianism as a spirit poisoning Germany; Hitlerism as Prussianism; the special peril that lies in Russianism; and the elements among ourselves that made for the increase of Hitler's power, especially the pacifism that made war inevitable.

The personal story of six years in the life of a young American woman told against the background of a way of life which has now ended is given in "Polish Profile" by Princess Paul Sapieha. She describes the idyllic meeting of herself and her husband when she was an American student in France, their eventual marriage, and how she adjusted herself to a semi-feudal society which was directly opposite to anything she had ever experienced, meeting each situation with humor, wisdom and a penetrating insight.

The funeral of Pope Pius XI brought Hugh Walpole to Rome in 1939 to write about it for a newspaper syndicate, and his impressions of that event are set down in "Roman Fountain." The book, written on his return to England, also goes into the matter of the election and coronation of Pius XII. The title of the book had its origin in a fountain which Walpole discovered in Rome when he visited there as a young man and which he was never able to locate again but which remained for him a symbol of the city.

With the hay fever season in the offing, sufferers may find out a little more about their condition and what to do about it in "Your Allergy and What To Do About It" by June B. Cohen and Milton B. Cohen, M.D. The authors explain allergy as an abnormal reaction of the body to substances that are generally harmless, and they give the background of these disturbances and point the way to relief. Special attention is given to asthma, hay fever, rhinitis, hives and food allergies.

Examples drawn from the World War illustrate the new work. "In the Complete Book of Progressive Knitting" by Ida Riley Duncan is timely because of the recent popularity of knitting. This book replaces the old method of following standard, one-for-all directions with concrete formulas which will insure the knitter a perfect fit for any garment or accessory she may choose to make.

Dr. Riegel Does Some Plain Talking About Frey's Agency

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — The state conservation department is not being investigated by the state research bureau, but "is being crucified by an agency which appears to be almost totally ignorant of conservation values, as well as completely unsympathetic towards them," according to Dr. J. A. Riegel, well known Wisconsin conservationist and a leader of the Wisconsin Conservation Congress.

50 British Refugee Children Arrive in New York on Liner

New York — Three hundred fifty British refugee children arrived unexpectedly on the British liner Samaria Monday—18 hours after the first contingent of 71 reached New York on the Scythia—as volunteer workers speeded up a nationwide child refugee air campaign. Most of the newcomers were with parents or guardians and most had been arranged. They ranged from babies to teen-age, the average being about 8. Most of them had experienced air-raid alarms but one was found who had been in an actual bombing.

Moral: Buy Clothes That You Can Use

Huntington, W. Va. —(7)—The top and gown worn by Genevieve after at Marshall college commencement was the same worn by her parents on five occasions when they received degrees.

Silver Pockets

Butte, Mont. —(7)—When someone made a wisecrack about his income tax, a crippled man holding a tin cup on a West Park street corner became enraged. Patrolman El Rodda overheard the argument, became suspicious and led the beggar to jail. There police found 31 pounds of silver coins in 11 bags distributed through his pockets. The coins were taken to a bank for a machine count.

May Build Bins

Berne —(7)—Landlocked Switzerland has to import 90,000 tons of foodstuffs over a four months' period, but has storage space available for only 40,000 tons. Much of the space is available only in frontier regions, so the Federal government has been considering plans to subsidize building warehouses for food stores in central Switzerland, where an invader would have to cross many a snow-covered mountain range before reaching them.

Hunts Oil

Wellington, N. Z. —(7)—Seeking profitable development of oil which has been known for 70 years to exist in New Zealand, modern prospecting has been under way since 1938 at an estimated cost of $2,000,000.

Fish Stories Lead in Screwy News Events of Last Week

Y GLADWIN HILL New York —(7)—Stretch your arms, boys—the fish-story season seems to have started.

Fish jumping into boats . . . fish being swung in baskets . . . fishermen using buckets . . . and fishermen catching 'em with their bare hands—they all cropped up in last week's moonshine marathon.

The champion fisherman of the week seems to have been Mr. Carl Hamm of Stamps, Ark.—he pulled in three on one hook.

He was using a goldfish for bait. A big perch struck at the goldfish, and a four-pound bass struck at the perch—and he hauled them all at once. The goldfish was still intact.

Down at Palestine, Texas, they shed with baskets and buckets. The Elkhart lake dam broke and boded the countryside with flopping bass and perch, and all you had to do was scoop 'em up.

G. D. Murray of Elk City, Neb., didn't even bother fishing with a net. He speared a big old sturgeon, 10 feet long and 64 pounds heavy, coming along in the Elkhorn river. Murray just tapped it on the back with a club and pulled it ashore with his bare hands.

Music Brings Fish Down in Currituck, N. C., a state where the fish stories grow even faster than the fish. C. M. Edwards fished around for hours without a catch. Then he turned on some jazz, his portable radio, and immediately landed a half-pound bass.

And if you want to know what's smaller with Kansas, the main policies and practices of the state conservation department.

Riegel alleged that Frey and his agency are using "methods which cannot be called anything but unscrupulous."

No effort is made to get the whole truth on charges and controversial matters in the conservation investigation, Riegel maintained.

"In fact, with the methods used in cutting off witnesses from adding essential data, it appears that this agency is afraid of the truth."

(Riegel several weeks ago criticized the conduct of Frey's investigation, and was thereupon subpoenaed by Frey for questioning. At the hearing he quarreled bitterly with Frey and Counsel James Fornary, while steadfastly defending conservation department heads against the accusations of the bureau.)

Fornary, said Riegel, "frequently shouts, browbeats, heckles and confuses the witnesses further tricks them into giving answers which do not intend to give and are not representative of the truth."

Riegel concluded with the statement that "perhaps Wisconsin will have to sacrifice its conservation resources to the cheap gods of politics before we will fully realize what is going on in Wisconsin," and wondered if "it might be that a few of our governor's advisors in conservation are seeking jobs."

St. Paul —(7)—Concrete made with sawdust instead of sand has been developed at the University of Minnesota.

Searching for materials to give ordinary concrete the advantages of light weight, cheapness and high insulating value, the agricultural engineering division has found sawdust the most promising. L. W. Neubauer, assistant in agricultural engineering, who supervised the tests, said that for certain uses, where great strength is not demanded and where weathering is not severe, clean aspen, spruce or Norway and Jack pine sawdust make a fairly satisfactory substitute for sand and gravel.

Car Gets Worst of It When Bear Gets in Way

Ironton, Ohio —(7)—Don Schwartz, welder didn't believe he really saw a bear standing in the middle of the street—that is not until he actually hit it.

The bear had escaped from its cage at a nearby gasoline filling station. The animal was unscathed from the encounter, but Schwartz's welder's car was damaged.

He Stubbed His Toe On a Screwdriver

Seattle, Wash. —(7)—Out of a possible grade of 4 points in a five-year engineering course, Jack Ralph Benjamin made 3.996—and his downfall was a screwdriver.

Though he got top grades in every other course, he managed only a B in a shop course in which his job was to turn out a screwdriver on a lathe.

He Seen His Duty

Lima, O.—(7)—An Indiana couple lost their two-year-old daughter in their car while they shopped. The child began throwing soft drink bottles into the street.

Patrolman Elgin Ralston induced the little girl to roll down the window of the car and opened the door. He took her in "protective custody," leaving a note for the parents who soon arrived to claim the child.

Got Something Here

Winston-Salem, N. C. —(7)—Dr. Paul Johnson had to rub his eyes when he went out to look at his new rose bush. A white and a pink rose were growing from the same stem.

thing at the moment seems to be that the fish there are feeble-minded. In Parsons, Kans., the Russell Crawfords and the Bill Thurstons fished long and futilely—and as they were rowing home, a two-pound bass jumped into the boat.

The queerest catch of the week went to Charley Jenkins of Dallas, Texas. He hooked a "possum-on-dry land"—when he wasn't even there. Charley walked into his garage and discovered that the "possum" had inadvertently snared itself on his fishing tackle.

Police in Limelight Continuing your Goofy Gazette: Along with the advent of the piscatorial silly season, the police also got pilloried. The police chief of Kansas City issued an order to his men to stop shooting spitballs at each other in the courtroom.

And the champion marksman of the Lancaster, Pa., police force was suspended for a day for popping his fellow officers with a pea-shooter.

To get people's minds off the 100-degree heat, some citizens of Caldwell, Idaho, paraded the streets in Santa Claus costumes and carried Christmas trees.

A mail carrier in Bethany, Mo., L. A. Parks, spent the first day of his vacation helping another mail carrier make his deliveries.

And, finally, the delayed-letter to end all of them. Postmaster Leroy Smith of Appomattox, Va., got a postcard addressed to "General Lee and General Grant." He sent it back, marked:

"They were here in 1863, but haven't been since."

Hollywood—It's long been my belief that studios usually exploit the wrong pictures.

They ballyhoo costly films, good or bad, and often permit really fine movies to go unnoticed.

Glancing at recent records, for example, I find such pictures as "Virginia City," "Strange Cargo" and "My Little Chickadee" among the exorbitantly advertised films.

Meanwhile, such fine movies as "Our Town," "Viel in the Night" and "Biscuit Eater" have suffered for lack of sales and publicity campaigns.

Such a situation is deplorable and due to Hollywood's wrong point of view. Why must studios exploit pictures according to their cost? Why can't movies be advertised according to their entertainment worth? Why can't movies be advertised according to their entertainment worth?

Of course, the answer is too apparent: It's because motion picture companies lay out their press campaigns too far in advance. If a picture is scheduled to cost $2,000,000, another $500,000 is automatically set up for exploitation LONG BEFORE THE PICTURE GOES INTO PRODUCTION AND BEFORE ITS MAKERS KNOW WHETHER IT'S GOOD OR BAD!

Alice Marble, Riggs Rated at Top in Tourney

Western Tennis Meet Opens; Van Horn No. 2 in Singles Seeding

Indianapolis — (P) — Top-seeded Bobby Riggs of Chicago and Alice Marble of Beverly Hills, Calif., had a pair of aspiring home town players for opposition today in their first matches of the western tennis tournament.

Riggs drew a bye in first round play of the men's singles yesterday and was matched with Arthur Lathrop of Indianapolis today.

Miss Marble drew Florence Wolff of Indianapolis for her opponent today in the first round of the women's singles. Virginia Wolfenden of Berkeley, Calif., seeded No. 2, was paired with Lois Adams of Indianapolis.

The drawings sent Gracyn Wheeler of Santa Monica, Calif., seeded No. 3, against Beatrice Brittain of Indianapolis, and Mary Arnold of Los Angeles, No. 4, against Mildred Millikin of Indianapolis.

Mary Hardwick of England, seeded foreign player, opposes Josephine Beach of Cincinnati and Catherine Wolfe of Elkhart plays Betty Weiss of Indianapolis.

Welly Van Horn of Los Angeles, seeded No. 2 in the men's division, was matched with Clyde Akard of Indianapolis. Van Horn eliminated Dan Morse, another home-towner yesterday, 6-1, 6-0.

Robert Kamrath of Houston, Tex., seeded third, won a 6-0, 6-4 victory over Al Meyer of Indianapolis and plays Arthur Long of Chicago.

Talbert Wins William Talbert of Cincinnati, seeded No. 4, meets Joe Apple of Muncie. He eliminated Louis Fehr of Marion, Ind., 6-1, 7-5.

Fifth-seeded Ronald Lubin of Los Angeles, who won a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Pack McLeod of Indianapolis in the first round, drew Donald Salisbury of Pottstown, Pa., for his second engagement.

Olin Parks of Mishawaka already has survived the second round. In the only second match yesterday he defeated Robert Neidhamer of Indianapolis, 6-1, 6-3, after eliminating James Thornburg of Anderson, 6-2, 6-1.

Other scores in first-round men's singles included: Joe Appel of Muncie defeated Nelson Johnson of Indianapolis, 6-7, 6-2.

David Scudder of Indianapolis defeated Albert Funkhauser of Evansville, 6-0, 6-3.

Y to Meet Menasha, Little Chute Teams

The Y. M. C. A. softball team will engage in two independent games this week, meeting Van's D. X. Oilers of Little Chute on the Little Chute diamond at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening and taking on the strong Gold Labels of Menasha at 6 o'clock on the Wilson school diamond in Appleton Friday night.

Greisch will be on the mound against Little Chute, and Branchford will work against the Gold Labels.

Association All-Stars To Play Blues Tonight

Columbus, Ohio — (P) — Headed by seven members of the second-place Minneapolis Millers, the American association all-stars will battle the league-leading Blues in Kansas City's Ruppert stadium Wednesday night, July 17.

Aiding the seven Millers will be four Columbus Red Birds, three St. Paul Saints, two Indianapolis Indians, two Milwaukee Brewers, and Toledo Mud Hen and one Louisville Colonel.

A. L. Fly Chasers in All-Star Game are Home Run Sluggers

BY OSCAR KAHAN

St. Louis — (P) — All-star game home runs and strikeouts ... in the making:

Each league will have its leading home-run hitter in the starting lineup, and both players are first-basemen—Johnny Mize of the St. Louis Cardinals, who has 21 homers, and Jimmy Foxx of the Boston Red Sox, who has 20. That's close. But the American league doubles its rival in the outfield.

The junior circuit's starting trio of fly-chasers has a total of 40 four-baggers — Charley Keller of the New York Yankees 16, Joe DiMaggio of the Yanks 13, and Ted Williams of the Red Sox 11—against only 20 for the National league's outfield—six each for Joe Medwick of Brooklyn and Mel Ott of the New York Giants and eight for Terry Moore of the Cardinals.

American League Power That's American league power for you, the average fan'll say, but the National league has the pitching. Only it ain't so.

The seven American league pitchers on the squad have yielded an average of 3.51 runs per game, whereas the National league's staff has been found for 3.69 runs per nine innings.

However, the top three of the National league—Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer of Cincinnati and Larry French of the Chicago Cubs—have allowed only 2.97 runs per game, against 3.06 for Bob Feller and Al Milnar of Cleveland and Buck Newsom of Detroit, the American league's leaders.

It seems certain that Bill McKechnie, manager of the National league team, won't forget his more important job—managing the Cincinnati Reds. He's unlikely, therefore, to use both Walters and Derringer in the game. Feller, who pitched (and lost) Sunday, seems an unlikely participant.

And Louis Norman (Buck or Bob) Newsom threatens "to take a walk" if he doesn't start for the Americans.

"Let's look at the record"—to borrow another expression from Al Smith: Red Ruffing of the Yankees, named as the probable starting pitcher, has won seven games and lost six. Newsom is riding high on a streak of 12 straight victories against only one defeat.

It's hard to figure, here's another: The only two National league outfielders hitting over 300—Jo-Jo Moore of the Giants and Bill Nicholson of the Cubs—will be on the bench when the game begins.

Four Starling First Time Only four players in the starting lineups never have appeared in an all-star game. Keller, Williams, Cecil Travis of Washington and Cookie Lavagetto of Brooklyn.

At that, Travis was a last-minute substitute, getting on the squad only because illness forced Red Rolfe off. If Rolfe had been able to play, there would have been six Yankees instead of five in Manager Joe Cronin's probable American league starting lineup.

When Mize and Terry Moore of the Cards trot onto the field it'll be the first time since the all-star classic was inaugurated that two St. Louis players will start on the same team. A lot of color was left out of the proceedings when Pepper Martin, the Cards' wild horse of the Osage, was omitted from the National league squad.

Martin, last of the Gashouse Gang, is hitting a lousy .352.

Art Hofkins dropped a tough game to Menasha allowing only four hits in 11 innings but losing 4 to 3. The Papermakers collected 13 hits off Connie Berry but didn't come through with mates on the hassocks.

Butch Kohls had the Kaukauna Mellow Brews at his mercy last Sunday and allowed four hits up to the ninth when he was capped. Kohls is a happy go lucky who gets up on his ear in a hurry but forgets the next instant.

Badger نادول doubled and Shetelski singled to score the winning run in the twelfth for the Falcons off Boucher, Kimberly Papermakers' relief moundman.

Otto Kirk, playing with Gettelman Brews, had a perfect day with three for three against the Red Sox Sunday. Frankie Krois, manager of the Brews, showed three for five. Frankie Bruggeman donned the mask and mitt replacing Sammy Krause who has been released by Gettelmans.

Stan Grey, pilot of the Fischl Dairies, showed in the outfield and collected four for five against Kaukauna to pace his mates at the plate. Ray Kosloski, shortstop, also collected two for four while Galbraith showed three for four. Kosloski has one of the best arms in the league for a rookie shortstop and will be watched by a couple of big league scouts in his next contests.

Next Sunday's contests will have Menasha Falcons invading the Red Sox park at Appleton, Kaukauna at Neenah, Gettelman Brews at Manitowoc, and Kaukauna at Oshkosh. This latter game should be a Kaukauna Mellow Brews tried out a mound recruit, Belongia, against Manitowoc but he didn't get past the first inning. The Fischl Dairy team trotted seven runs over the plate in the initial stanza. He was nicked for four hits by the first five men to face him. Combined with a walk and an error they went for five runs before Lefty Diederick went in to relieve him.

A league meeting will take place tonight at the Eagles hall at Manitowoc. Second half business will be discussed. All arbitrators also have been invited for a confab with the league president, George Vander Loop. Manager Stan Grey of the Dairy team will be host at a luncheon after the meeting.

Bill Nofke, Appleton Gettelmans twirler, set down his arch home run rivals with two runs and five hits while his mates combed Cliff Burton for twelve hits and nine runs. Cy Burton was the only Red Sox player to get a pair of blows.

Tuesday—Trinity Lutheran versus Methodist.
Wednesday—St. Therese versus Congregational.
Thursday—Evangelical versus St. Joseph.

B'nai B'rith defeated Mt. Olive 5-4 in a Church league softball game at Roosevelt field last night in the first of the second-round games.

Gabriel, B'nai B'rith third baseman and first man to bat, clouted a home run to centerfield, the ball bouncing over the fielder's head.

B'nai B'rith scored two more runs in the second. Simonsky and Goldwater singled and were brought home by Gabriel's safe hit.

Not until the sixth inning did either team score again. B'nai B'rith getting two runs and Mt. Olive one. Cohen and M. Zussman were safe on errors, advanced on passed balls, and scored on a fielder's choice that was late at the plate.

Eu. Pegel gave Mt. Olive its first score in the last half of the sixth when he belted a home run. The Mt. Olive team rallied in the ninth to bring in three runs but could not get the tying tally across.

Eu. Pegel walked and Evan Pegel cracked a double. Helms singled, scoring the two men. Helms stole second, got to third on a passed ball and scored on an infield out. Heule struck out, ending the game.

Fight Promoters Don't Want Jacobs

Chicago — (P) — Two Chicago boxing promoters threatened legal action today if the Illinois state athletic commission granted promoter Mike Jacobs of New York a license to put on a boxing show in Chicago.

Jacobs has indicated he planned to bring the proposed Max Baer-Joe Louis heavyweight title fight to Chicago in September.

The Chicagoans, Mique Malloy and Joseph Coffey, asked the commission to prevent Jacobs from promoting in this state by refusing him a license. They instructed their attorney, John H. Lyle, to take "legal action if necessary" to bar Jacobs.

Malloy and Coffey held that the invasion of Jacobs would encroach on their territory.

Feathers and two other members of the "fifth column", Joe Laws veteran Packer half back from Iowa, and Don Hutson, the pass catching paragon from Alabama, will be playing in their third All-Star game. Feathers and Laws were teammates on the first college squad in 1934. Feathers returned the next summer as a member of the Bears and Laws and Hutson played with the Packers when the All-Stars won 6 to 0 in 1937. Hutson also was on the 1935 squad, which lost, 5 to 0, to the Bears. Feathers, Laws and Hutson are the first players to participate in three Chicago games.

The presence of so many former All-Stars on his roster is expected to give Lambeau some insurance against the indifference which complicated his task in 1937 and was largely responsible for the Packers' defeat.

Men who have played with the All-Stars should not be lulled into a state of false security. They know with what diligence and eagerness the collegians tackle the All-Star assignment and they are familiar with the advantages, psychological and physical, the All-Stars have in this game.

In addition to the three timers, Feathers, Laws and Hutson, the "fifth column" is composed of Cecil Isbell, Purdue half back; Charlie Brock, center, and Fred Shurey, tackle, both of Nebraska; Frank Balaz, Iowa full back; Bill Lee, Alabama tackle; Gus Zarnas, Ohio State guard; Harry Jacunski, Fordham end; Jimmy Lawrence, Texas Christian half back; Andy Uram and Larry Buhler, backs, and Bud Svendsen, center, of Minnesota; and Eddie Jankowski, full back from Wisconsin.

Isbell, Uram and Shurey were the stars of the Collegians' 28 to 16 victory over the Washington Redskins in 1938. Isbell passed 24 yards to Johnny Kovaich, of Northwestern and later of the Cleveland Rams, for the All-Stars' first touchdown and was named the All-Stars' most valuable player by the 325 newspapermen covering the game.

Shurey made a one handed interception of Sammy Baugh's first pass to set up a 12 yard field goal by Frank Patrick of Pittsburgh, now with the Chicago Cardinals, on which the All-Stars took a 3 to 0 lead. Uram intercepted Dick Tuckey's pass and returned 40 yards for the All-Stars' last touchdown at a time when it appeared the Redskins might pull the game out of the fire.

Laws and Feathers were the stars of the first game in 1934 when the mighty Bronko Nagurski and associated Bears were held to a scoreless tie. Laws lead a march down the field the first time the All-Stars took the ball, reaching the 15 yard line before a fumble broke up the advance. Feathers sparked another long foray a few minutes later.

VOTE FOR HELMETS—"It's better to wear a helmet than be carried away on a stretcher," says Napoleon "Larry" Lajoie (above), one of baseball's immortals, as he joins the controversy over headgear to prevent "beanball" injuries. Lajoie, now 64, is ranked among the best second basemen in the game's history, summers at Mentor-on-the-lake, Ohio.

Green Bay—Anchored over black bass beds off the numerous uninhabited islands which dot Green Bay, Coach Curley Lambeau these days quietly formulates plans for a blitzkrieg to break the tie in the Chicago All-Star series when his world's champion Green Bay Packers tackle the college All-Americans on Aug. 29. The Collegians have won two of the six games to date, the National Football league's representative has taken two, and a license to put on a boxing show in Chicago.

Protests Flow

Over Gas Plan

Businessmen Worried

Over Proposals to ## Construct Pipelines

Businessmen—Bales of protests from ## who fear the effects of the competition from the proposed natural ## gas pipe lines from southern oil fields to Wisconsin consumers are ## descending upon the Wisconsin public service commission, it was disclosed here today.

The commission recently received two applications from corporations for authority to pipe gas from the oil fields to southern Wisconsin.

One company, recently organized, is the Wisconsin Natural Gas company. It is proposed to send the gas through pipes from Texas and Kansas to southern Wisconsin points and to judge from the protests received at the capitol, there is a fear that later the lines may be extended to up-state Wisconsin.

Hearings on the applications have not yet been set, according to R. W. Peterson, chairman of the public service commission.

Petitions and letters by the score have been received from fuel oil dealers and their employees, coal operators on the Lake Superior and Michigan shores, coal dealers and hundreds of coal truck drivers throughout the state in the last few weeks, the commission reports.

At least one candidate for governor, Phil Nelson of Superior, has directed the attention of the commission on the potential loss of employment in Wisconsin industries which is involved in the pipe line proposals before it.

The suggested pipe lines for gas are the first ever proposed for Wisconsin, although the idea has been carried out in neighboring states, commission authorities reported.

Stricter Regulations

For Stock Sanitation

Control are Proposed

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison — Proposals for stricter regulations for livestock sanitation control will be before the state board of agriculture at a meeting in the capitol Thursday.

Hearings were recently held throughout the state. The central Wisconsin session was held at Shawano.

The proposed regulations will apply to the shipment and sale of horses, cattle and other livestock, and will apply particularly to livestock sales barns, department authorities explained.

Scientist Studies What Life

In a Refrigerator Is Like

Minneapolis — (U. S. A.) A refrigerator, to most of us, is a thing to tuck away in a corner of the kitchen.

But Professor Frank B. Rowley of the University of Minnesota has reversed the procedure.

For he has put not only a kitchen, but a full-sized house, inside a huge refrigerator in one of the university's laboratories.

The house is 22 feet square, save for a niche in one corner, but there's plenty of room to spare in this 30 foot square and 28 foot high "cooler."

The purpose of the venture is to work out some insulation problems raised largely by air conditioning.

Temperature in the refrigerator can be driven down to 30 below zero to duplicate effects of winter weather, while inside the model three-room house the mercury can be kept at any desired point.

A principal objective of the study is to determine why moisture sometimes forms inside the walls of a house, and to find means of preventing it.

Vapor passes readily through ordinary plaster, then condenses inside the wall, said Dr. Rowley. The best solution discovered to date, he said, is to prevent it from getting into the wall in the first place, by properly-placed vapor barriers — certain papers or paints — although various types of insulation are used, mounted in sections of the walls, which are removable to permit inspection.

A complicated maze of wiring permits an operator of a control board in the laboratory basement to read temperatures at any of more than 50 points inside the rooms, inside the walls and around the outside of the house.

Chicago Cabin Cruiser Docks At New London

7-Ton Craft Makes 425-Mile Water Trip In Less Than 5 Days

New London—Believed to be the most distant boat to reach New London by water since pioneer days, the Cecille III of Chicago, a 7-ton cabin cruiser, docked at the site of the New London Boat club here at 10:45 Sunday morning after a 425-mile water cruise over a period of 41 days.

The boat, owned and piloted by John Swanson, Chicago, carried Mr. and Mrs. Swanson, their niece, Mrs. Hattie Rorer, and their nephew, Richard Werner. They plan to spend the week at New London with Mrs. Swanson's sister, Mrs. J. H. Beumler, unless fast receding waters compel the large craft to start homeward while there is yet enough water in the river.

The 38-foot cruiser, powered with a 300-horsepower gasoline engine, left Chicago Wednesday morning. From Fremont the boat was guided up the Wolf river to New London by Warren Shoemaker, commodore of the New London Boat club, and Lloyd Goltz, a club member. Also joining the party at Fremont for the last leg of the journey were Mr. Beumler, Mrs. P. A. Morien, and Sammy Shoemaker.

Meets Fast Water
The cruising party spent its first night out of Chicago at Milwaukee, the second night at Sturgeon Bay. From there the ship proceeded leisurely up Green bay and entered the Fox river. A total of 17 locks were negotiated in the course up the Fox river valley. At Appleton, an 8-mile current required all the power available to make any headway. The Cecille III is capable of a top speed of 12 miles per hour but cruises at 8. Because high water had moved marking buoys, a pilot was hired to navigate the ship from Appleton to Menasha.

Unusually high water in the Wolf river made the trip to New London uneventful, but with the water dropping nearly a foot a day the last two days, the party may be forced to shorten its visit and make a hasty return to Fremont to forestall any difficulties. If the high water continues, the boat will remain here until Sunday. It requires a depth of at least four feet for safe passage.

Farmer Is Hurt as Hay Load Tips Over

New London—Charles Brehmer, 72, town of Caledonia farmer, suffered a fractured collar bone, several broken ribs and bruises of the back when a wagon load of hay on which he was riding tipped over on his farm about 7 miles south of New London late Monday afternoon. Brehmer was working alone and was thrown from the top of the load when it tipped. He was treated at the office of a New London physician and returned to his home.

LaVonne, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myrtle McFaul, Shiocton street, suffered fractures of both bones in her right arm when she fell from a tree at her home while playing Monday afternoon. The fractures were reduced at the office of a New London physician.

Birthday Anniversary Is Celebrated at Party

New London—Mr. and Mrs. William Breitenfeldt entertained about 40 relatives and friends at their home Sunday evening in honor of Mrs. Breitenfeldt's birthday anniversary. Guests were present from Appleton, Neenah, Dale and New London. Schafkopf was played and prizes were won among the ladies by Mrs. Frank Huebner, Mrs. Lawrence Miller and Mrs. Oliver Kloehn, the latter of Neenah. Men's prizes went to Oliver Kloehn, Arthur Felsner of Dale and Ray Wauschesock. Traveling prizes went to Mrs. Wauschesock and Arthur Felsner.

New London Boys Go to Army Camp

New London—Eight New London boys left last week for Citizens' Military Training camps at several army stations. The period of enrollment is one month.

Going to Camp McCoy at Sparta, Wis., with this year has been completely motorized, were Howard Fox, Floyd Watkins and George Webber. Fox is spending his third year at the camp while the others are entering training for the first time.

Enrolled with the infantry at Fort Snelling, Minn., are Lloyd Bodoh, serving his second year, and Jack Denti, Dick Wyman and Eugene Fillion. Jack Seering enrolled at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Ned Demming, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Demming and Carroll college athlete, has enlisted in the Civilian Conservation corps for the summer and will leave for his post Wednesday. He plans to leave camp in the fall to continue school at Carroll college where he will be a senior this year.

Two other New London youths, Ray Brush and Merlin Behnke, have been reported enrolled in the C.C.C. and scheduled to leave Wednesday for a camp at Wausau.

Oils Rally to Beat Hashouse

Len Schultz Drives 2-Bagger With Bases Loaded in Last Frame

Commercial League
Standings:
Pure Oils	4 1
Pure Milks	3 1
Miller High Lites	1 3
Shoey's Hashouse	1 4

New London—A 2-base swat by Len Schultz in the last inning with the bases loaded spelled a close 8 to 7 victory for the Pure Oils over Shoey's Hashouse Monday night and kept the Oils a contender for the first half title which ends next week.

Bob "Half" Nelson gave up only four hits and his team led 7 to 4 until the last inning when he blew up and allowed a single and two walks to fill the sacks. After Schultz's double, Ted Ebert duplicated to make it four runs. The Hashouse gang was unable to make a comeback in the last half of the seventh, pitcher Charlie Nader shutting them out with able support in the infield. The losers got nine hits to the winners' eight. Nelson walked eight, Nader two.

Wednesday evening the Pure Milks will face Miller High Lites to try to keep in the lead. The High Lites beat the Plywood squad of the Senior Men's league 13 to 8 in a practice game at the city ball park last night.

Hospital Patients

New London—Mrs. Albert Gesse, 420 E. Cook street, was admitted to Community hospital as a patient Friday night.

Miss Betty Darling, Waupaca, underwent an operation at Community hospital Saturday.

Francis Kosmerchok, Manawa, was admitted as a patient to Community hospital Sunday.

It Is Said ---

That something in the way of a minor salvage operation was under way in the Embarras river at the rear of the Freiburger garage at New London Monday morning. It seems that the 24-foot auto-powered scow belonging to Arthur Freiburger was scuttled by receding waters when the prow became caught high on the rocky bank and the heavy 78-horsepower motor caused the stern to flood, sinking all but the bow. Some under water maneuvering by Bernard Freiburger, a brother of the owner, succeeded in hooking a tow line under the stern and the business end of a wrecking service truck completed the salvaging operations.

A guest at the George Demming home this week is Miss Thelma Lenhyer of Monroe, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Burton moved last week from 813 Smith street to 409 E. Wolf River avenue into the home formerly occupied by Henry Christensen.

The apartment at 813 Smith street has been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pribnow who lived formerly at 102 E. Hancock street.

New London Woman Is Hurt in Auto Accident

New London—Mrs. George Urban, 1013 Wyman street, suffered body bruises and abrasions when the car in which she was riding, driven by her husband, was involved with one driven by Gladys Rogers of Kansas City, Mo., while the couple was enroute to Clintonville on Highway 45 Sunday afternoon. The Missouri car was going south and both machines were badly damaged but no one else was hurt. Mrs. Urban was treated by a New London physician.

During the past 25 years the number of restaurants in Wisconsin has more than doubled.

HIGH TIDE

By Frances Harman

diplomacy, demonstrated a greater perspicacity.

"I'll apologize to her," he decided. "I can't have her hiding her life from me."

And now he went on to remember other things. Of how, at twenty-eight, he'd been a fine aviator, a trusted pilot, of how his exuberant young spirits went on leash the moment he stepped into a cockpit and were released only when he stepped out, of the good money he earned. He paid for Jan's schooling and living and his life was his own so long as his parachute opened.

Eyes of A Dog

There were girls, lots of girls, always. He had the sort of looks women fancied. Sometimes, for a while, there would be one girl in particular. But they were all alike if they cared for him; they wanted him to stop flying. They never understood.

Well, he'd stopped flying. Rather, flying had stopped him. And now the only girl he saw was a mouse of a little school teacher. Much of the time he felt grateful for Norma; thankful for her quiet companionship; but there were other times when he could have screamed at her, sitting so placidly with her knitting, looking at him with the adoring hungry eyes of a dog. Yes, a dog! Some day he would scream at her and frighten her and then she wouldn't come in any more with her knitting.

Derek plodded home from his first day's work with a scowl on his badly sunburned face. Lance, Norma and Jan were waiting dinner for him in the kitchen, their eyes on him expectantly. He took his place at table without a word and it wasn't until Jan served the fresh rhubarb pie that he said anything beyond table courtesies. Then he lit a cigarette and met their eyes with mockery in his own.

"Such polite restraint I've never before witnessed!" he declared. "You're all bursting to know how I made out. Well, I stuck it all right, but I don't like it. Your Captain Tupples is a Simon Le-gree, Jan, but this old Uncle Tom took his beating without a yowl! I lost one of the big cane poles, managed to turn a very bilious green, and insulted a customer. However, don't look so distraught—I didn't get fired."

"You'll learn," Jan consoled.

"That's my greatest fear," he mourned. He held up his hands to show her the rising blisters on the palms. "Anyhow, I'm tired as a dog. If a dog ever gets tired

Why do people say that? Why should a dog be tired, he never does any work! Happen to have any cream or lotion for my face, Jan? I'll look like a Mexican vaquero by tomorrow night."

"And what does a Mexican vaquero look like?" Norma asked.

"Like an Indian trimmed in silver." Observing his listeners' interest he expanded under the influence of a well-filled stomach and a steaming cup of coffee. "The vaquero is picturesque, but not nearly so much as the street sleepers who sit all day huddled against buildings, benches or trees with a blanket over their shoulders, knees drawn up and a gaudy sombrero over their faces. You see the same ones in the same places every day. If one of them died it wouldn't be discovered for days! It's different, though, down around Acapulco. Most of the natives, men and women and children, work very hard, keep immaculately clean, and save their pesos."

"You must have traveled quite a bit in Mexico," Lance commented. "I was offered a job once flying the Mexico City airline, but I didn't take it."

"I spent six months there," Derek said, then cut himself short as if afraid he'd talked too much. He arose from the table, frowning. "I'm going to bed."

"He's a queer cuss," Lance said as the sounds of Derek's feet died out above. "I'm beginning to feel the stirrings of curiosity."

Red Flag And Bull
Johnny came in, putting an end to speculation. As if by tacit agreement they never mentioned Derek to Johnny. "It's like waving a red flag at a bull," Norma had put it succinctly.

"I can get you a swell job," Johnny told Jan with explosive enthusiasm. "They want a hostess over at the Club and they'll pay good money. Fix yourself up and I'll take you over for an interview."

She looked at Lance, who shook his head. "Thanks, Johnny," she said stiffly, "but we don't need money that bad."

"There's nothing disgraceful about it," Johnny argued. "All she has to do is meet people and—"

"No," Lance cut in. "She's too young. She isn't the type. I don't want her mixing with that artificial bunch of rich picture people from Hollywood."

Johnny looked so crestfallen, so injured, that Jan said, "It was sweet of you to think of me, but Lance is right, Johnny. I'm definitely not the type they'd want. I'd have stage fright and jitter all over the place. Besides, I have no suitable clothes and no way of getting any."

"You are the type," he insisted.

"That is, you could be, if you have your hair done by an expert and your face—"

"Leave her alone!" Lance ordered, his thin hands gripping the rubber tires of his chair. His pale, worn face flushed with annoyance. "She's fine just the way she is. I don't want her made into a painted, sinking mannequin. Just because I can't take care of her is no reason she—"

the anger died suddenly from his voice and he seemed to shrink into his shell of meager flesh. "Do as you please, Jan," he ended.

"I wouldn't consider it for a moment," she dismissed the entire matter.

The brief scene distressed both her and Norma, for they knew such a swift ascent of emotion might keep Lance sleepless for hours. Norma, driven from her usual placidity by concern for him, announced firmly: "I'm going to take you to a moving picture, Lance! Jan, you get a heavy coat for him."

"I won't go," he protested. "I won't be stared at. I won't, I tell you! A woman pushing me along the beach, shoving me into a theater where I have to sit in the aisle and people have to squeeze around me and fall over me! I went once with Frank last year and I swore I'd never go again. What's the matter with all of you? Are you determined to torture me with my helplessness?"

"I thought—" she hesitated, went on: "The picture is 'Test Pilot.' I thought you might want to see it. Lance, you love airplanes so."

His lips worked to control their quivering. "Well, why didn't you say so? Get my coat, Jan. To hell with the mob."

It is entirely different from all others, and is wonderfully comfortable, rustproof, and washable. Amazing results are reported by many, some discarding the appliance entirely in a few months. The cost is reasonable — terms if desired.

Stop wasting money on trusses that not only disappoint, but often permit your hernia to become worse. Please call and we will explain our proposition fully FREE OF CHARGE. Many local people endorse our appliance and service. Let us show you our written guarantee.
